New Yorker Unanimous Choice for Legion Head

E. S. Spafford is First Man Ever to Be Elected National Commander Without Opposition—Pandemonium Breaks Loose as His Election Is Announced.

Paris, Sept. 22 (AP).—His nomination made, seconded and unanimously confirmed within five minutes, Edward S. Spafford of New York today took a place apart in the election of national commanders of the American Legion. The new national commander, who is former commander of the New York department of the Legion, was elected without opposition, a procedure hitherto unknown in elections of the organization of American World War veterans.

The election of Mr. Spafford set another record. It was the first time the purple mantle of the highest office in the gift of the Legion had fallen on the shoulders of a New York man.

Pandemonium, which had broken loose at intervals during the convention, again had its fling when the formal but unnecessary announcement of the election was made.

A Great Ovation

Surrounded by the convention, Commander Spafford received an ovation greater than that tendered even such popular heroes and appealing figures as General Pershing, Marshal Foch, President Doumergue, Premier Poincare and many other distinguished men and women who have graced the Legion convention rostrum with their presence.

Every one was on his feet yelling at the top of his voice as the New York banner was carried to the platform. The Erie county fife and drum corps marched down the aisle to the stage, seeming to create more noise than the 14 bands that blared forth in Monday's parade.

Introduced by Savage.

Spafford, with the new national mascot, Jay Ward, in his arms, mounted the platform and was introduced by National Commander Howard P. Savage.

"No honor has ever come to any one greater than that you have given me," he told the Legionnaires, as they cheered again, louder if possible than the previous outburst.

"I promise you that I will try to equal the great record made by my predecessor, Commander Savage."

Addresses French People.

Turning from English to French, the new commander then sent a message to the French people through the loud speaker, the burden of his remarks to the Legion's hosts being: "You have been most magnificent in your welcome to us and we two people love one another."

The election came as a bolt from the blue, after a long and at times tedious debate bordering on the acrimonious in which 45 resolutions presented by the committee had been discussed and adopted or rejected.

Send Message to Herrick.

The last resolution, adopted with the cheers of the delegates to speed it on its way, was a message of greeting to Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, sick at his Cleveland home, expressing regret at his indisposition and wishing for him a speedy and complete recovery.

The suggestions adopted ranged from a stand for child welfare to suggestions of the United States government that the 5-5-3 ratio of naval forces should be maintained.

Endorse Boy Scouts.

The convention enthusiastically approved the Boy Scout movement on a resolution by the committee on Americanism. It also cheerily adopted resolutions recommending that progress in aviation be favored in every way possible by the Legion, that cities and towns be urged to establish airports wherever practicable and that signs aiding airmen in finding their way be placed on the roofs of conspicuous buildings.

Want New Holiday.

The proposition that November 11 be each year observed as a national holiday under the name of "Armistice Day" was unanimously adopted.

The question of the deficit incurred by the American Legion Monthly then came up and the committee on finances asked that Legion dues be raised 25 cents a year in order to put the magazine on a paying basis. The convention adopted the committee report proposing the increase in dues.

The aeronautic committee presented a resolution favoring a separate department of aviation with a cabinet secretary at its head, the committee declaring that the situation now warranted a separate aviation department. It also proposed that the national guard have the same aviation equipment as the regular army.

General Roy Hoffman asked whether this resolution had not been included in yesterday's action in accepting the report of the national defense committee.

Want Immediate Action.

"Yesterday we decided to recommend a separate aviation department 'as soon as warranted'. Today we are asked to recommend the organization of this separate department immediately", he said.

Former Brigadier-General William Mitchell, chairman of the aviation committee, moved the adoption of the resolution, and then replying to General Hoffman admitted that today's resolution covered the same ground as that of yesterday.

"This resolution is in fact to override our action of yesterday which I think was taken hastily", General Mitchell said. Generals Mitchell and Hoffman finally agreed on a resolution in which the words "as soon as possible" were inserted after the recommendation for a separate department, and in this form the resolution was adopted.

Elected Vice-Commanders.

James Raftis of Washington, Paul R. Younts of North Carolina, Ralph T. O'Neill of Kansas, Dan Spurlock of Louisiana, and J. M. Henry of Minnesota, were elected vice-commanders.

The Rev. G. R. Wilson of New Jersey, who fought with the LaFayette Flying Corps before the United States entered the war and then with the A. E. F., was elected chaplain.

Convention Adjourned.

The convention adjourned at 3:47 as the bands played and colors and badges were presented to the new commander, the vice-commander and former commander.

Spafford A Navy Man.

New York, Sept. 22 (AP).—Edward Elwell Spafford, who was elected today national commander of the American Legion at its Paris convention, is the first navy man to head the veterans' organization.

Spafford is attached to the law firm of Fischer and Strachan, of this city. He was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy with honors and rose to the rank of Lieutenant Commander, but resigned his commission in 1914. At the outbreak of the war he re-entered the service and commanded a destroyer overseas. His war record won for him the Distinguished Service Medal.

Ex-N. Y. Commander.

Spafford became commander of the New York state department of the legion in 1922 and held that office for one year.

Spafford was endorsed as a candidate to head the national organization by the New York department last year.

Born in Vermont.

Spafford was born in Springfield, Vt., in 1878 and made a record in scholarship and athletics at the Springfield schools. After he had graduated from the Naval Academy he refused appointment to the staff of Admiral "Fighting Bob" Evans, who led the U. S. fleet on a world cruise when Roosevelt was president, because his desire was for active service.

Nelson of Wurts street, died Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock in a hospital at Ilion where he was removed following an accident that day. The parents had been called to Ilion that afternoon when word of the accident was telephoned them.

At the Nelson residence this afternoon it was stated that the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson expected to leave Ilion for Kingston this afternoon at 5 o'clock. Further details received here of the accident were to the effect that at the time Richard Nelson was fatally injured Wednesday he was driving a truck for the construction company by which he was employed and that he lost control of the truck and it went over a bank with him.

Tale of Tragedy And Heroism

Unfolding as Details of Fire Which Swept Catholic Mission in Lac la Plonge Region Are Received—Sister Lea and Nineteen children Burned to Death.

Saskatoon, Sask., Sept. 22 (AP).—Grief overshadowed the little community of Lac la Plonge today as parents and relatives of the victims of the fire which destroyed the Roman Catholic Mission at Beauval, Sask., collected at the ruins in an almost hopeless effort to identify the charred remains of their loved ones.

Laid side by side in an improvised morgue, the bodies of the nineteen boys who perished in the flames, were in many instances burned beyond recognition. Pathetic scenes were witnessed as mothers and fathers, accompanied by comforting mission sisters, huddled over the tiny forms, examining charred bits of clothing in the hope of identifying their own.

Through all the grief, emerged a note of glowing praise of the heroic efforts of Sister Lea, a teacher at the mission, who sacrificed her life Monday night in a vain attempt to save the lives of the trapped boys.

According to word received here today by courier, Sister Lea, after ascertaining that all the girls had been saved, rushed into the blazing furnace when attracted by the screams of the 19 inmates of an upper floor of the dormitory whose escape had been cut off by a circle of flames. She vanished through a cloud of smoke and died shouting encouragement to the helpless inmates.

Forty-six children were rescued from the raging flames.

The fire is believed to have started in the center of the building close to the furnace and spread towards the boys' dormitory.

Two Planes Race Across County for Non-Stop Flight

Two Planes Carrying Four Men Racing From New York to Spokane in Non-stop Flight Will Travel 400 Miles Farther Than Lindbergh—Hear from Schiller.

New York, Sept. 22 (AP).—Four men in two huge monoplanes today apparently were speeding westward over a new nonstop transcontinental air trail, with flying fame, a share in $15,000 in prize money and Spokane, Washington, as their goal.

Their course lay over a 2,300 mile "bee line" to the western city from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., from which they took off yesterday in the last and most exacting of the Spokane air derby races.

If the airmen were on schedule they spanned the eastern states yesterday and last evening, passed over the middle-west during the night and headed for the vast Rocky mountain territory.

A Long Flight.

Their trail was overland almost throughout, across hills and valleys in the east, plains in the middle-west and mountains nearer the Pacific coast. It was 400 miles longer than the ocean jump of Lindbergh, Chamberlin and Byrd and 100 miles shorter than the course of the Dole transpacific fliers.

Rival pilots in the nonstop derby event were Edward Stinson, consuered one of the country's greatest stunt fliers, and C. A. "Duke" Schiller, who recently abandoned a projected transatlantic flight when a storm of public opinion arose against such hops as a result of the loss of life. They were flying almost identical planes both designed and built by Stinson. Both carried 490 gallons of gas.

Not Alarmed Over Silence.

Although nothing had been heard from them during the early stage of their race, no alarm was felt as they had planned to avoid large cities in following a route that would provide the shortest distance.

Two Planes Left Behind.

Hear From Schiller.

Garden City, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP).—Telegrams received here today by the Rogers Air Line, forwarded from points where they were dropped by "Duke" Schiller and "Eddie" Bohn, his mechanic, in their nonstop cross country flight, indicated that all was well with the fliers.

One message forwarded from Stratsford, Ont., read: "Still going. All's OK. Just eating. Weather clear now but had some rain. Signed Duke and Eddie."

A second sent from Bay City, Mich., read: "Still going. All OK. Weather good 10:30."

The messages were dropped from the plane in envelopes of which both fliers had a goodly supply. Long silk streamers mark their descent from the plane and on the face of the envelope is a request that the finder relay the message.

Locate Jensen's Plane and Leo

Roosevelt Dam, Ariz., Sept. 22 (AP).—A searching party led by Martin Jensen has located the plane in which he crashed in the mountains near here with Leo, motion picture lion, as a passenger.

The plane was reported wrecked with little chance of salvaging it. Leo was weakened from lack of food and water since the crash Friday, several hours after Jensen took off for New York on a non-stop flight.

Jensen's party made the trip from Kohl's ranch about nine miles from the wreck and sixty miles from here. Ranchers plan to use a sled to transport the lion in his steel cage to the highway for the return trip to Culver City, Cal.

Elected Head of Legion Auxiliary

Mrs. I. M. Walbridge of New Hampshire Elected National President of Legion Auxiliary—Elected by Close Margin.

Paris, Sept. 22 (AP).—Mrs. Irene McIntyre Walbridge, of Peterboro, N. H., today was elected national president of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Mrs. Walbridge was elected on the second ballot, having a close margin over Mrs. Boyce Ficklin, Jr., of Washington, Ga., for whom the south voted solidly on the first ballot. On the second ballot only Alabama deserted her and this caused great amusement because of the state's historic fidelity to the cause of Oscar W. Underwood in the last Democratic convention.

Mrs. J. E. Barcus of Indianapolis, Ind., the third candidate, withdrew after the first ballot.

Mrs. Bessie Steward Smith of Chicago was elected vice-president for the central division filling the place that Mrs. Barcus formerly held.

Mrs. Walbridge was born in Kingston, Ont., in 1891. She is the daughter of Commissioner William McIntyre of the Salvation Army, who is in charge of fifteen southern states with his headquarters at Atlanta, Ga. She served in France with the Salvation Army during the war.

The Auxiliary went on record as opposed to "the impression that auxiliary women as a whole are pacifists."

The women voted to uphold the national defense program of the legion. They also adopted a resolution favoring "more universal reading and renewed study of the Bible."

Had Battle With Troopers' Slayer

Corning, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP).—James Marshall of Dansville is in a hospital with a bullet wound in the knee after a gun battle with Wilmot Leroy Wagner, indicted for the slaying of two state troopers at Canadea two weeks ago, and the man hunt which has continued during that time was today drawn to the Canasaga valley, with every indication that officials have cornered the alleged slayer.

Marshall, who has known Wagner for three years, was hunting in Poag's Hole, a mile and a half from Dansville, late yesterday when he saw a man sulking through the underbrush. He called to him to stop, and as the refugee turned, Marshall recognized him. Wagner dodged back into the underbrush and started to run, whereupon Marshall, who was carrying a shotgun fired at him. Wagner returned fire, hitting his victim in the knee, and escaped.

Marshall was found by a passing motorist about half an hour later and brought to Dansville, where deputy sheriffs and police heard his story.

Physicians say that the wound in Marshall's knee was caused by a bullet from a high calibre rifle, such as Wagner is known to be carrying.

Claim Minister Has Many Wives

Head of Private Detective Agency Asks for Arrest, Charging Former Columbus Minister With Bigamy—Believes He Has a Number of Wives.

Columbus, Ga., Sept. 22 (AP).—The clerical garb of the Rev. Willis T. Jordon who is ill at a Grand Rapids, Mich., hospital, has been revealed as the cloak of a lothario according to investigations by W. T. Glover, head of a private detective agency which has been seeking the minister since his disappearance here a week ago.

Mr. Glover has asked authorities at Charlotte, N. C., to swear to a warrant charging the Rev. Mr. Jordon with bigamy. This action was taken at the request of the former Mrs. Emma Lamuridge, of Washington, who now resides in Columbus. She declares to have married Mr. Jordon in Charlotte in 1925 and also said that she had married the evangelist by long distance telephone two years and seven months before the ceremony was performed in Charlotte.

Receipt of a telegram from Winding Gulf, W. Va., confirmed the report that a woman there had been married to Jordon and that so far as she knew no divorce had been obtained.

Other evidence indicated that the minister had wives in Winona, Minn., and Akron, Ohio.

Jordon disappeared from Clumbus recently when he was relieved of his pastorate in a church here. He was found in a Grand Rapids hospital where he is alleged to have admitted that he went to Grand Rapids for the purpose of marrying a woman. He said that he became ill while waiting the five years required by law before he could apply for a marriage license. He admitted having a wife in Roanoke, Va.

Ruth Elder May Begin Paris Hop

New York, Sept. 22 (AP).—Paris bo! Ruth Elder, the "real American girl" pilot of the monoplane American Girl, spread out her nattiest flying costume before her and packed a tooth brush and a vanity case today, and waited for the weatherman's gun to start her on her nonstop sky ride to Paris at dawn tomorrow.

The same runway mound at Roosevelt Field where Lindbergh, Chamberlin and Byrd took off on their flights across the Atlantic was the perch reserved for Miss Elder's plane this afternoon. Gas and oil sufficient for the 3,610-mile journey were provided for the craft, completing the last detail—barring proper weather—before the American Girl takes off.

Young Chinese General to Marry

Shanghai, Sept. 22 (AP).—An Oriental romance of a piquant Chinese graduate of Wellesley College and a nationalist general young in years but old in military service has enlisted the interest of all Shanghai.

Miss Meiling Soong, at a dinner to Chinese and foreign friends last night, confirmed reports that she was to marry General Chiang Kai-Shek, who until a short time ago was commander-in-chief of all the nationalist forces in their struggle against the north.

There would be no formal announcement at present, she said, because of the objection of her family to the match, but she was determined to follow the dictates of her heart.

"I sincerely love the great general," she said.

Chiang is coming to Shanghai next week from Fenkhwa, where he has been since he resigned as nationalist generalissimo. Both of them will then embark on different ships for Japan to lay siege to the Soon family, who are spending the summer there.

Bedtime Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE TREE TOADS

Early one morning the fairies invited the tree toads to have luncheon with them in the old grove where they were so apt to give their parties.

They Were Sitting Around.

The tree toads had accepted and the day had arrived for the luncheon.

And, as a special honor, because they had been invited to the fairies' luncheon party, the tree toads tried to look their best, too.

They asked the dewdrops if they could wash their little faces in their rare water.

Now when the fairies saw the tree toads, and when the tree toads saw the fairies, they all gasped.

The tree toads had never seen the fairies looking so lovely. They wore dresses of very soft green which were decorated with little purple daisies.

Their wands matched, and their wings were the color of soft, pale green, too.

And they were sitting around in the wooded grove on ferns and mossy patches of ground when the tree toads arrived.

But the tree toads gave the fairies just as much of a surprise, for they wore green suits, too.

They looked quite noble, having washed their faces with magic dewdrops, and they wore green spectacles made out of leaves with holes, to make them look wise.

In addition to all this they carried green sticks made out of young trees, and they arrived in an old wagon made out of the root of a tree.

The wagon was drawn by the green lizard family.

First got out Grandpa and Grandma Tree Toad, and then all the younger toads hopped out after.

The luncheon began of delicious things made out of the best of woodland foods, and last of all came the green woodland ice cream.

But when the ice cream came along, what should be seen on top of it but a little, tiny old man made out of ice cream, too.

How the tree toads did scream with delight.

"What's your name?" they cried.

"I'm the little man of the ice cream freezer. Every time ice cream is made in one of the freezers where I live, I come out on top of the ice cream dressed all up as ice cream, too."

Grandpa and Grandma Tree Toad.

"But you look good to eat," said one of the toad children.

"That's what I'm here for," and he looked very happy and pleased about it.

"And next time there's ice cream I'll be here again."

"Yes," said the Fairy Queen. "We are going to have a hopping game, and the one who does the greatest number of queer hops will eat the little ice cream man!"

And little Harvey Hop Tree Toad—quite a shy little fellow—won the prize and ate the ice cream man, but all the toads had plenty to refresh them after their hopping match.

Fond of Their Horses

An Arab is exceedingly proud and fond of his steed, and every care is taken of its training. It is brought up with his children, and the Arab babies play among the horse's legs without injury, the beautiful creature is so good tempered. Should an Arab rider be thrown from his horse and hurt, this faithful four-footed friend will stay patiently by his side until he is sufficiently recovered to mount again.

The Arab boys are used to horses from their earliest days, and when they are old enough they attend riding schools and are trained to be fearless riders.

Mistaken Identity

Mother (after visitor had gone)—You dreadful boy! You stuck your tongue out at the minister. Now, don't deny it! I saw you as I entered the room.

Bobby—Why, mother, I just showed it to him. He said: "Little man, how do you feel?" and I thought he was a doctor.

Grew Careless

"Yes, I used to be in politics myself. I was dog catcher in my town for two years, but finally lost my job."

"What was the matter—change of mayors?"

"Nope. I finally caught the dog."—American Boy.

Insurance Talk Before Rotary

Growth of Industrial Insurance Described at Weekly Luncheon by Frank Heimerle—Amount of Kingston District Business Reaches Big Figure.

Rotarians at their luncheon at The Governor Clinton this week were so stimulated by being allowed the use of the Coffee Shop that the singing was continuous and melodious, possibly a little more of the former than of the latter. After the songfest they heard a lot about diphtheria and insurance. The diphtheria orator was Dr. Daniel Connelly, city health officer, whose purpose was to enlist Rotary aid in supplying automobiles to transport children to and from the clinic to be held on Friday afternoon in the armory.

The insurance talk was by Rotarian Frank Heimerle, manager of the Kingston district of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., who dealt in figures that made the audience dizzy. Industrial insurance was begun in 1879 by the Metropolitan, which then had a capital of $200,000. Experts were brought over from Europe to institute the new system and there was great excitement in insurance circles, powerful influence being exerted against the new plan. Today the company has $5,487,800,648 of industrial insurance in force on which it collects $260,000,000 annually in premiums, and all this has been brought in by the industrial insurance solicitor. At this point the speaker presented a specimen in the person of Silas Beatty, now an assistant superintendent but for a long time a solicitor, as "Exhibit A."

Solicitors are carefully selected, the first thing considered being character. Other elements are ability as a collector, salesman, diplomat, patience and sympathy. Promotion and earnings depend on fitness and growth. The average pay of the 20 men in the Kingston district for August was $71.85 a week each and the average for the year will be well over $65 a week each. There are 27,251 policies now in force in the Kingston district, of which 17,138 are in the city of Kingston.

In addition to its industrial insurance the compay carries $6,566,596,872 of ordinary insurance and $1,144,584,107 of group insurance, a total of $13,948,981,627. The assets of the company are over $2,000,000,000 and its income in 1896 was $595,000,000 and its policies are in force on 24,000,000 lives.

After the figures given by Mr. Heimerle the matter of collecting $1,500 pledged by Rotary to help pay for the new building for the Boy Scouts seemed almost too trifling to consider, but was considered just the same and the money will be paid over on or before October 1.

CLINTONDALE.

Clintondale, Sept. 22.—Sunday school rally day will be observed in the M. E. Church next Sunday. The program begins at 9:45 a. m., and continues throughout the day. At 2:30 p. m., there will be a joint meeting of the Junior League and the Sunday school. This will take place in the auditorium of the church. The spirit and purpose of rally day will also be stressed in the evening service, which begins at 7:30 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Members of the Epworth League are asked to remember the devotional service next Sunday.

Thursday night is prayer meeting night. The prayer meeting is an indicator of the spirituality of the church.

Imperfect Rubber Goods

Many were the troubles that early manufacturers of rubber goods experienced on account of the propensity of rubber to expand and contract with the heat. Daniel Webster, who was Mr. Goodyear's counsel in his patent litigation, humorously referred to a fine cloak of India rubber he once owned, stating that in cold weather it stood well by itself, and that he often set it out on the porch surmounted by his hat, many persons passing by mistaking it for the Sage of Marshfield himself.

Base Metals and Gold

The idea of transmuting base metals into gold seems to have had its origin, long before the birth of Christ, in Arabia, where the study of chemistry was remarkably advanced in early days. Lead has been nearly always the metal chosen—as recently, by a professor of the University of Manchester—to be dealt with in this way. Mercury is the next best bet, but silver is highly recommended.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Friday, September 23.

Edward Lankow, American bass, widely known as a concert and operatic soloist, will be the featured artist of the entire hour to be broadcast by WJZ and the Blue Network direct from the Radio World's Fair on Friday night. The instrumental portion, with several dance numbers, of the program will be supplied by the Philco Orchestra under the direction of Walter G. Haenschen. At the same time WEAF and the Red Network will present a program of favorite selections from musical comedies as rendered by the soloists in the "Musical Miniatures." Spirituals by the Auxiliary Negro Chorus, No. 1, will be an interesting DX highlight for this same night. Other features have been arranged through WNYC, WOR, WSB and WLS. CNRT, of Toronto, has arranged a novelty program "All-Canadian," which is a schedule of the most popular compositions of three of the leading Canadian composers, Dr. Healey Willan, Leo Smith and Cornelia Gerhard Heintzman.

Wave lengths in meters on left of station title, kilocycles on the right. Times are Eastern Daylight Saving and Eastern Standard. Black type indicates best features.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

(©, 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Be firm whatever tempts thy soul
To loiter ere it reach its goal.
Whatever siren voice would draw
Thy heart from duty and its law,
Oh! that distrust. Go bravely on,
And, till the victor crown be won,
Be firm. —Sarah Mayo.

FOR LUNCHEON

A hot soup is enjoyed if followed by cold meats or some simple main dish. A soup that is especially well liked is:

Split Pea Soup.—Soak the peas over night and in the same water cook them with a pinch of salt pork, a ham bone, or lacking either, cook alone with a bit of onion and celery and add plenty of butter or cream when the soup is ready to serve.

Cream of Cucumber Soup.—Have ready one cupful of stewed cucumbers, rubbed through a sieve. Take the liquor in which the cucumber was cooked, reduce to half a cupful and set aside. Put into a saucepan one tablespoonful of butter, and when it is sizzling hot add two tablespoonfuls of flour, with salt and pepper to season. When the mixture leaves the sides of the pan add three cupfuls of cold milk and stir until it boils. When the mixture is cooked like a thin cream sauce add the cucumber and the half cupful of liquor. Boil up once and serve.

Macaroni With Codfish.—Take a cupful of boiled macaroni and one cupful of flaked codfish. Put it in layers into a buttered baking dish, add enough cream to moisten, cover with buttered crumbs and bake until well heated through. Any meat may take the place of the fish.

Creamed Fish With Potato.—Prepare creamed salmon as usual and put a layer of the fish into a baking dish with a layer of cold mashed potato, then another layer of fish and potato, until the dish is full. Cover with well-buttered crumbs or dot with bits of butter and bake until brown in a hot oven.

Potato Border.—Pipe a border of seasoned mashed potato around a platter. Set into the oven after brushing well with butter or beaten egg. Brown and serve with a cream-dish of fish in the center. The potatoes may be riced, then dotted with grated cheese and browned. The filling may be sliced roast or hot chops.

STILL "GUESSING".

Secretary Hoover, according to a New Orleans dispatch, has emphatically asserted that he "will not resign from the Cabinet to become a candidate for the Republican nomination". This seems more definite than if he had said "I do not choose", etc., and yet there is left the possibility that he may permit his name to go before the nominating convention without resigning from the Cabinet. So there is room for "guessing", as there still seems to be in the case of Mr. Coolidge. We read that since the President's return to Washington there has been no indication that he will add anything to his first announcement, and of the varying views at the capital a dispatch to the Springfield Republican says:

Some have accepted Mr. Coolidge's statement as meaning that he will not be a candidate in any event; others say they are puzzled and don't know what to think; a third group says the President sincerely does not wish to run again, but may have to be drafted and would run under such a call, while still others say he is the leading factor in the situation and will be nominated. All this naturally has friends of other Presidential possibilities chafing as well as guessing and gives Mr. Coolidge the advantage of the situation.

A JESSE JAMES MONUMENT.

If it were proposed in England to erect a monument to the memory of Robin Hood the suggestion might at least be tolerantly received, but no such reception of the proposal to honor Jesse James with a monument is likely. One difference is that Robin Hood has had about eight centuries, and Jesse James only half a century, for the creation of something like a halo around his name. Another difference is that throughout the centuries Robin Hood has been credited with robbing the rich and powerful only in order to give generously to the poor and oppressed, while Jesse James has been known only as the chief of a gang of self-seeking bandits. The Kansas City lawyer heading the movement is quoted as saying that it is backed by many "friends of the James family all over Missouri". This is not improbable, for large numbers of people nowadays seem to think that if honorable fame is out of reach inglorious notoriety is the next best thing.

Even a recent apologetic biographer of Jesse James admits that he and his gang "committed robberies and infrequent murders incidental to robberies from time to time through a long period of years", insisting (of course) that they had been "driven into outlawry", and having "many friends who agreed with them in that respect". It is added that "in some parts of Missouri this feeling still persists". These present-day friends may well be reminded that hitherto the only proposed memorial to Jesse James was made by his contemporaries and that they wished it to take the form only of a plain grave stone after the hangman had finished his appointed business.

TRIBUTE TO TAFT.

Among the tributes to Mr. Taft on his seventieth birthday there is one that entertainingly draws upon the classics for material and comparison. In an editorial in praise of the Chief Justice, entitled "A Modern Aristides," the New York Times suggests that Plutarch could have said of the distinguished American much that he said of the great Athenian, and that the following paragraph could have been carried over bodily from the description of Aristides to a description of Mr. Taft: "In all the vicissitudes of public affairs the constancy he showed was admirable, not being elated with honors, and demeaning himself tranquilly and sedately in adversity; holding the opinion that he ought to offer himself to the service of this country without mercenary views and irrespectively of any reward, not only of riches, but even of glory itself."

This tribute from an independent Democratic newspaper is a reminder that Mr. Taft's well deserved popularity has long extended beyond his own political party lines. As President, his kindliness, good will and honesty won the friendly feeling as well as the respect of the opposition. As Chief Justice, the position for which he is more suited, and which from the outset was the summit of his own ambition, he has won—like Aristides—the "highest admiration" in all quarters, except possibly among the more extremely radical element. In one particular Mr. Taft stands alone in the history of American politics, enjoying the unique distinction of having served both as President and as Chief Justice, the two highest offices the great American republic has to give to the most distinguished of its citizens.

ANOTHER USE FOR THE X RAY.

One of the hard parts about taking the cure for tuberculosis is the many weary months of living by rule. Where there is any temperature the patient has to lie quietly in bed until it comes down. Then he must sit around for weeks, perhaps months, and then a little walking for months more, and later more vigorous exercise such as gardening. There must be the same articles of diet, meat, milk, eggs and vegetables, and so many hours of the outdoors every day.

The lungs are such soft tissue that their building up to a point of safety is a slow process.

It is not to be wondered at therefore that some patients get discouraged, especially when they see patients who entered the sanitarium after them, going out cured before they do.

However Dr. von Holten, who has been doing special work on tuberculosis, feels that he has discovered something that will hasten the cure in tuberculosis, and thus shorten the time that these patients must remain in the sanitarium.

For the past six years he has been giving his patients treatments with the X ray.

He begins by giving small doses on one portion of the lungs for a number of days, gradually increasing the duration of the treatments. The average duration of the treatments was ninety-six days for female patients, and eighty-eight for male patients.

He reports the results obtained in 353 patients. Of this number 29 per cent were light, or cases just at the beginning stages of tuberculosis. 58 per cent were well established cases, and 13 per cent were of the advanced type.

Of this total number treated 250, or about 70 per cent, were able to return to work.

Dr. Holten doesn't claim that these cures were entirely due to X ray treatments. All the other factors—food, rest, sunshine enter into it, but there is no question in his mind that the cures were hastened by these X ray treatments.

You can readily see what this means from the patient's standpoint, thus doing away with weary days o waiting.

And so we must thank the X ray for one more benefit it bestows upon mankind.

Beaver Made Use Of Scarecrow

Harriman Park Beaver Destroyed Scarecrow Erected to Frighten Them and Used Materials in Building New Dam.

The beaver in the Harriman State Park, in the Hudson Highlands, prolific progeny of two pairs brought from the Adirondacks seven years ago, have had a lot of fun with the park rangers who have been trying, with varying success, to keep their industrious engineering within reasonable bounds, but recently they have exceeded all records in defying attempts to regulate them.

Capt. William E. Gee, chief game warden, sought to discourage a new colony that had lately established itself on the headwaters of Stony Brook, near the Kanawauke Lakes, the Boy Scout headquarters, at a point east of the Seven Lakes Drive, west of Lake Tiorati, and nine miles southwest of Bear Mountain.

He had tried about everything else; blasting out the dam, putting pipes underneath it and hose siphons over it, to lower the water and persuade the beaver to quit, but they hung on and rebuilt their dam and restored the pond a dozen times. Recently he levelled the dam, and thinking it might work to frighten them away, he installed a scarecrow, in the form of a suit of blue overalls, stuffed with brush and ferns.

A day or two later he found the scarecrow missing, and the dam was rising again. Search disclosed the overalls, in fragments, built snugly into the structure of brush and mud.

Now he is fencing the edge of the drive with wire screen, in hopes to shut off the animals from a supply of poplar and other trees which they prefer, west of the drive, and which they have been gnawing down and dragging across the road over several well worn skidways through the brush. They had exhausted food and building material in the swamp about their pond and Capt. Gee hopes by cutting off their timber supply to persuade them to select some other location, where they will not kill off the trees along the drive.

Chefs Cut High Cost of Eating

Decide That One Well-Cooked, Savory Dish Makes a Meal—Claimed to Be Height of Perfection.

Toulon, France, Sept. 22 (AP).—The world can cut down the high cost of eating by the adoption of the Provencal scheme of cooking. This is the informal decision of the chefs of southern France.

The one maxim of the Provencal cuisine is that one well-cooked, savory dish makes a meal. Economists agree that an average household in Provence eats better and spends less than in any other district of France.

"The economic arguments in favor of the Provencal scheme are unanswerable and therefore not worth treating," said one famous chef. "Everything in the world revolves around the question of food. It seems, however, that there are many people in the world who claim they can not afford to eat well. The true gourmets and epicures say that a Provencal one-dish meal is the height of perfection. Provence knows that the cost is minimum. But the preparation of a genuine Provencal pot-au-feu is a task as difficult and painstaking as the preparation of the finest dish served in any restaurant in New York, London or Paris. The dish not only must be tasteful, but also as nutritious as a three-course meal."

At the chefs' dinner each person was allowed one small appetizing dish, which was followed by his one-course meal a la Provencal.

Provencal onion soup made with a duck base and thickened with toasted bread, browned onions and cheese was one of the most popular dishes. Cassoulet a la Languedocienne was another. This dish is made of white beans, goose, onions, tomatoes, beef stock, fresh pork and pork sausage. Other typical Provencal dishes included pot au feu de la Midi, filet de boeuf a la Provencale, rabbit pilaffe and algoeau, the true Provencal bouillabaisse.

Traveling Health Units Aid Infants

Benefit of Right Kind of Medical Advice at Right Time Sought to Be Provided by State Health Authorities.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP).—A woman watches over the welfare of upstate New York's most important crop—its babies.

She is Dr. Elizabeth M. Gardiner, director of the Division of Maternity, Infancy and Child Hygiene. It is her duty to see that thousands of mothers and children, who might otherwise go without proper care, have the benefit of the right kind of medical advice at the right time.

Dr. Gardiner has placed her task on a business-like basis. How her work is accomplished she explains as follows:

"When a state tries to improve its apple crop it usually begins in one of several localities, and keeps the other apple growers of the state informed about the progress made.

"This is exactly the way New York has gone about improving the crop of babies. At the present time upstate New York has more than 100,000 babies a year, and in New York city the number is even greater."

In three years Dr. Gardiner and her assistants have reached about 75,000 women. Aid is administered through demonstration units that travel in the rural districts, and through community health centers headed by public health nurses. These are financed by local, state and federal funds.

"Mothers are given attention and advice during the prenatal period and also at the time of birth and in the nursing period," explains Dr. Gardiner. "Children are examined during infancy and early childhood and their mothers are instructed in accordance with the findings. Nurses are supplied to supervise the 'follow up' work, placing the children under the care of the family doctor and seeing that necessary treatments are instituted and health defects corrected."

Each case is referred back to the attending physician for proper treatment.

Workshop of Spain

The Rambla, Barcelona.

CATALONIA, Spain's northeastern province, is forever threatening revolution; but in recent centuries, at least, the revolutions have never quite resulted in independence.

The geography of Spain is better known in terms of its cities than its sections. Catalonia can be placed readily by calling it "the province of which Barcelona is the head city." Politically it can be located by calling it Spanish Ireland. Still Catalonia might resent this label as much as she chafes at Madrid rule, because her history of independence running back to the Ninth century at least is quite ancient enough to warrant Ireland being called instead "the English Catalonia." To make Ireland a proper parallel it would be necessary to move from England across the Irish sea most of England's factories and mines and most of her industrious workmen. There would be left in England (now playing the role of Spain) the governing classes and the military.

Catalonia is the workshop of Spain. It claims to pay nearly 80 per cent of the nation's tax bill. The annual income produced by this single province is reported to be two-thirds that of the entire nation. Although Catalonia covers only one-sixteenth of the area of Spain it supports one-tenth of the population.

There is an old Spanish proverb, "A Catalan can turn stone into bread." A Catalan is proud of that proverb. Work is raised to high dignity in Catalonia. The Catalan does not envy Seville and other Spanish cities their reputations with tourists as quaint spots where the Middle ages linger unashamed. He lives in the present. He is proud of Barcelona's rows of workingmen's houses and smokestacks. Modern machinery can be found on Barcelona's docks. At the Catalin mines the latest advances in mining engineering are in evidence. The Ebro, which drains the whole south flank of the Pyrenees, is dwindling to a creek because of the rapid increase of irrigation. It is the Catalan's close link with the progressive world that has made Barcelona Spain's glass of fashion and the second city of the nation.

They Have Their Own Language.

Castilian Spanish is official Spanish. It is standard, like Parisian French. But once away from Madrid one hears all sorts of variations of Castilian. Go into Catalonia and you will hear another language entirely. The Catalans have spent much time and effort conserving their own language. Newspapers are printed in Catalan. While it is a Romance language, the tourist equipped with both French and Spanish might as well stop up his ears when he crosses the border. He will be deaf to Catalan.

If the traveler comes from the North he will run into the Catalan language before he crosses the border. For many centuries before Spain and France became well-knit states, Catalonia was a saddle over the Mediterranean end of the Pyrenees mountains. On the French side the Catalans have not clung to their heritage with the passion of their Spanish brethren. Most of them, like Marshal Joffre, himself a Catalan, are deeply loyal to France. But in Roussillon, in French Catalonia, one may hear in a short walk through the narrow streets, Spanish, French with a Spanish accent, French with a Catalan accent, Spanish with a Catalan accent, Spanish with a French accent, Catalan with a French accent and Catalan with a Spanish accent.

Catalonia has a flag, too. It is a yellow banner with four diagonal red stripes. There is a fine story to the design. A dying Catalan hero drew his bloody fingers across his yellow scarf and gave it to his countrymen for a standard. While the banner does not appear often in public, it is introduced in coat lapels, automobile radiator caps and insignia for athletic teams.

So normal are its occasional revolutions, uprisings and riots that Barcelona has two kinds of police. One kind, the "urbanos," attract immediate attention by their red coats and walking sticks. They are charged only with the regulation of traffic and with directing strangers about their beautiful city.

The other kind, the "carabineros," usually are mounted, go armed, stand at police crossings and other strategic points; and theirs is the duty of putting down any incipient uprising. Seldom do these attain the importance of a revolution.

The Fortress and Rambla.

Barcelona's grim fortress on a rocky hill at its harbor entrance frowns upon the stranger; but its broad, colorful, lively streets welcome him most graciously. It is a city of pictures as it was when Washington Irving described it. The years have not robbed it of its charms, but they have brought factories and noisy traffic.

The more fashionable streets have a tree-lined promenade for pedestrians in the center and on the outside of the trees are the highways. Here the struggle of the old and the new is epitomized in the automobile, the horse-drawn carriage, the "mule bus," which is just what its name implies, and the donkey carts with the exceptionally small animals of Spanish breed.

Woman frequent the streets as they do nowhere else in Spain; and on the Rambla, Barcelona's Fifth avenue, stroll ladies with faces half-hidden by mantillas, others in smart walking suits and Parisian hats, and still others, native peasants, with picturesque velvet garb and their long baggy caps.

Even amid the sights and scenes of a street one's attention ultimately is attracted by a house of the so-called Catalonian style which, at first, may look like a distortion of a mirror of many curves. A longer inspection of many a fine Barcelona home discloses that the curved and crooked lines, and bevel effect at each window tier, are purposely designed, and admiration is elicited by the delft tiles in variegated colors which appear below the roofing.

Until 1492 Barcelona was the New York of the Mediterranean. Its position in the northeastern coast of Spain, actually at about the same latitude as New York city, relatively is to the Mediterranean world what the Western city is to Atlantic trade routes. Columbus' voyage was considered a bit of impertinence on the part of the Catalonian government to upset the balance of trade in favor of cities in western and southern Spain.

Soon a movement swept the Catalan provinces, of which Barcelona is the center, for annexation to France. In 1640 Catalonia did rebel against Philip IV, and gave itself over to French protection; but its old allegiance was renewed in 1652, and cemented by the peace of Ryswick before the close of the Seventeenth century. In four centuries this resentment had ameliorated enough to permit the placing of a statue of Christopher Columbus in the Rambla.

Big Industrial City.

Despite its commercial subsidence when the Atlantic replaced the Mediterranean as the major water route of civilization, Barcelona flourished. A year after the late war between George Dewey and Spain, as O. Henry put it, Barcelona paid more than a tenth of the kingdom's entire revenue from industrial taxation. Before the World war some two score important shipping companies had made it a port of regular call, and today the city has a population exceeding half a million.

In respect to publicity Barcelona has hardly put its best foot forward, since it is heard of most often as a center of riots, strikes, and rebellions. Though one traveler found the citizens pleasantly surprised that King Alfonso, who had just visited there, had escaped with his life, he concluded after staying a time that, "with all her reputation for turbulence Barcelona seemed an enlightened and thoroughly progressive city." Havelock Ellis paid a more glowing tribute, after admitting the city's faults, by saying: "Barcelona is a revelation of what a great commercial city may be when humanely and harmoniously organized. In a beautiful and exquisitely tempered climate, a robustly independent and clear-eyed population has here freely expanded itself, loving work and loving play, and combining these two fundamental human impulses more completely and more admirably than in any other equally great city."

Despite its disorders and its modernism, Barcelona retains many relics of those mellow times when Cervantes made it the setting for Don Quixote's later adventures. There still are church possessions, lottery ticket sellers, policemen with red coats and helmets, flower stalls and caged-bird vendors.

CHILDREN ARE NOW PERMITTED SIMPLE FUR COATS — WHILE DESIGNERS ARE INCLINED TO IGNORE WAIST-LINES. BELTS ARE FREQUENTLY ADDED

New York—Designers of children's clothes, like designers of those for mature or overly-developed figures, find it better to ignore the waist-line. In looking about among the junior departments, one finds, however, a tendency to follow the trend and make some sort of distinction between skirt and waist. Boleros and short, straight jackets are a sort of answer to prayer for young, undeveloped figures, and jumpers are made adaptable to youth as well as to age.

The school frock may again be of fine wool; it may also be of novelty velveteen or a combination of the two. Tweeds and jerseys, with their variegated color schemes and interesting designs, offer endless possibilities for the youngster's frock, which has a rather grown-up tendency toward smartly turned and tailored lines.

The school coat, frequently of novelty woolen, is inclined toward belted lines and may be bound, banded, or trimmed with leather or with such furs as are not too grown-up for the younger set. Children are now allowed fur coats. They should always be on simple sport lines and of muskrat, nutria, beaver, or the furs associated with youthful sports types.

How Superstitions Arose

The Friday superstition arose because the crucifixion is supposed to have taken place on that day. Some persons think it is unlucky to spill salt, because Judas Iscariot seems to be spilling it in DaVinci's picture. Others think that it is because salt is a symbol of incorruptibility, and spilling it is, therefore, a sign of broken friendships and general upsets.

Claim Fine Was Not a Substitute

National Guard Authorities Claim Words "In Lieu Of" Does Not Mean Imprisonment Sentence Was Given as Alternative for Payment of Fine.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP).—Upon the meaning of the words "in lieu of" hinges the right of a National Guard court martial recently held here to force the retention of a guardsman in the Onondaga county penitentiary despite the payment of a fine by relatives. The case is now before the judge advocate of the New York National Guard in New York city.

Private Elwood F. Boyle of Battery A, 104th Field Artillery, unwittingly precipitated a controversy between local military authorities and Onondaga county officials when he left the penitentiary last week after his relatives had paid a fine of $18 as a substitute for the 15 day sentence he was serving for failure to attend the company's summer encampment this year.

Boyle was sentenced to prison under the terms of the National Defense Act, according to the military authorities, which specified that he should serve "in lieu of" a fine. This, the army men contended, meant "instead of" rather than "in default of" and that consequently the soldier's release upon payment of the fine was in error.

Deputy Superintendent Broad, of the county institution, however, asserted that when the fine had been paid Boyle had the right to be freed as would any civil prisoner. The case was brought before District Attorney Clarence Unckless by Captain Charles F. Stanton, of Battery A, but the district attorney refused to concede the correctness of the army attitude, and the facts were then placed before Colonel J. A. S. Munday, adjutant of the Twenty-seventh division. Colonel Munday upheld Captain Stanton's contention of error and carried the case to the judge advocate.

Boyle originally was sentenced to 200 days in the penitentiary but the authorities there refused to accept him on the ground that the commitment was defective. Another commitment, based upon the National Defense Act rather then the State Military Law, was made out, and the prisoner accepted after having served two days of his sentence in confinement at the Battery A armory.

Learning of his release, the National Guard officers immediately moved to have him returned to jail, arguing that no fine had been imposed and that consequently there was no option on the part of the civil authorities to accept a fine.

JELLY-MAKING TIME

With the progress of science and discovery we find that many of the fruits lacking pectin which we would have enjoyed as jelly may now be prepared with little trouble. Long cooking, which in former times seemed so necessary, is done away with and the flavor and the color of the fruit is preserved.

Berry Pineapple Jam.—Take one measure of pineapple, two measures of berries, and three measures of sugar. Cook according to rule, adding one-half cupful of thickening and the jam is ready for the jars. Berries which have been crushed and preserved fresh with sugar may be used for this recipe at any time of the year, so jams can be as well made in winter as summer.

If one has none of the proprietary viscogens, take the white portion of the lemon or orange, with all the yellow removed, and cook for three hours in a pint of water, strain and add to fruit lacking pectin when making jelly.

If one likes rhubarb—it makes most attractive jelly—take one quart each of cubed citron melon and rhubarb and cook together until soft. Drain in a jelly bag and drip over night. Boil the juice a few minutes, then add the sugar and cook to the jellying point.

For pineapple jelly, take a quart of ripe pineapple diced and an equal quantity of citron melon, one pint of water and cook to a pulp. Strain or drip over night, boil ten minutes, then add equal measures of sugar and cook until it jells—about 15 minutes. If the pineapple is very sweet, a tablespoonful of lemon juice will add to the flavor and quicken the jellying process.

A test which is reliable as to the pectin content of fruit juices is this: Take an equal quantity of the unsweetened fruit juice—a teaspoonful or less—and alcohol of the same quantity. If it becomes a gelatinous mass by stirring, the fruit has plenty of pectin and needs none of any other fruit.

Expressing Contempt

The tongue has a single gesture, and everybody knows what it means. It is thrust out to express contempt. The little girl who "sticks out her tongue" does not realize that her action, so unladylike, harks back to the prehistoric. It is undoubtedly a most ancient mode of conveying the idea of intensified disrespect. Everywhere in the world, among savage and civilized peoples, the lingual gesture has the same recognized significance.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Plymouth, Mass.—There's been a lot of crap shooting within 300 feet of Plymouth Rock. It will probably cease, since police broke up a crowd of 50 and arrested four players.

Washington — Notwithstanding protests and injunction suits the navy intends to store explosives at Yorktown, where the last battle of the Revolution was fought. Contracts for the construction of magazines have been awarded. Court proceedings have failed.

Southboro, Mass.—A gentleman who has done considerable toward putting the noise out of business uses the salesman. Henry Ford's workhorses from his Wayside Inn won prizes at the annual fair.

New York—Any Beau Brummel desiring to know the latest modes from Paris might take note of the symphony in yellow which was "Hank" Gloria Swanson's marquis, when he arrived: Bright yellow calf shoes, yellow and white striped socks, blue shirt with yellow stripes, scarf of yellow and brown checks, light tan suit, yellow linen waistcoat. And for more class, he's intent on selling $20,000 automobiles.

Paterson, N. J.—There have been various romances in tennis; and Miss Ellen Brought, women's national champion at the 220-yard dash, has become the bride of Albert Post, state Y. M. C. A. champion, at the 50-yard dash.

New York—Charles Dillingham cabled Cyril Maude, noted English actor, an offer of a part. Maude has replied that he cannot accept because he's engaged already—to be married. His fiancee is Mrs. Harry Trew, widow of an old neighbor, who was master of the Brexhill Harriers.

Chicago—Mrs. Earl McBath, who was "Miss Chicago" for a few hours until the sponsors of a beauty contest discovered that she was married, has made up with friend husband. Having filed suit for divorce on the ground that he cost her the title and was otherwise cruel, she has decided to withdraw her petition.

New York—A suggestion that Mrs. Henry Moskowitz may be the first woman in the presidential cabinet is made by Henry F. Pringle in a book, "Alfred E. Smith, a Critical Study". Mrs. Moskowitz is head of the publicity bureau of the Democratic State Committee.

Overcome Physical Ills

Elizabeth Barrett, before she married Browning, spent long years on her couch. At the age of fifteen she met with an injury to her spine, which kept her in a recumbent position for several years, and from the effects of which she never recovered. It was during these years that she wrote those sonnets which are the greatest claim to immortality.

Not Altogether Aged

There is a woman in our neighborhood who is eighty years of age, but who walks with an erectness and springiness that is the envy of women many years younger than she. The other day my young daughter saw her pass, and, turning to me she said: "Mother, her face is much older than her legs, don't you think?"—Exchange.

Kiwanis Kapers Was Big Success

Concluding Performance by Local Talent at Broadway Theatre Again Attracts Large and Appreciative Audience—Good Sum Realized for Underprivileged Child.

The Kingston Kiwanis Club has added to its list of achievements in the successful presentation of Kiwanis Kapers, which was staged the first three evenings of this week at the Broadway Theatre. Wednesday night's performance attracted another large and appreciative audience. From the amount of applause given each number the entire show was thoroughly enjoyed.

The dual purpose of contributing to a worthy cause and secondly to view the offerings of some of Kingston's most talented entertainers bespoke success for Kiwanis Kapers. From all sides great credit is given the local Kiwanians, who gave of their time and energy for the cause of the underprivileged child.

The program, well balanced, peppy and captivating, was staged by Director Adams, whose accomplishments have been heralded throughout the city and county by those who had the pleasure of seeing him work. The talented cast and the cooperation given the director, together with the beautiful theatre, afforded Mr. Adams an unusual opportunity to show his wares.

Proceeds of the entertainment will go toward the benefit of the underprivileged and needy children of Ulster county. A good sum was realized for this cause, and the important part played by the public is acknowledged and appreciated by the Kingston Kiwanis Club.

In previous published reports a description of the numbers on the program and the names of those who took part was given. There is nothing to be added but the assured fact that when the local Kiwanis Club attempts another enterprise, it will receive the same cooperation from the public.

Singular Illness

Train Tribes in Industrial Work

Kayente, Arizona, Sept. 22 (AP).—Anger is considered the worst sin of man by the Navajo Indians of Arizona and New Mexico, says Mrs. Louisa Wetherill, their "guardian mother". She lived among the Navajos for nearly thirty years, since she and her husband, John Wetherill, went to New Mexico to establish an Indian trading post.

One of the best American authorities on tribal history and life, Mrs. Wetherill was appointed a member of the Advisory Committee of One Hundred on Indian Affairs by Secretary of the Interior Work.

She advocates industrial training for the tribe as a whole, as the solution of the problem of Indian education.

"When the Navajos receive a comprehensive education through the industrial schools", she declares, "they will realize their privileges and responsibilities of citizenship. They are hardly impressed with their position as American citizens now. Their natural good breeding, however, will make them civic assets, if they are given the industrial training necessary for their development."

GENE TUNNEY

JACK DEMPSEY

By Alan J. Gould

Associated Press Sports Editor

Chicago, Sept. 22 (AP).—For the brief space of 39 minutes, or less, Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, fighting for the heavyweight championship in a ten-round decision match tonight at Soldier Field, will hold the eyes and ears of the sporting world.

For that short span of time, close to 150,000 pairs of eyes, paying upwards of $2,500,000 for the privilege, will focus upon the most expensive, most talked of and most spectacular drama the ring has ever known. Millions all over the world will hear or read about the details of this gigantic spectacle through the greatest concentration of radio, telegraph and cable facilities in the history of communication for any single event.

Great Interest Shown.

Today, as the time for the battle neared, as the inrush of fandom from all parts of the country reached its peak and as the last minute hubbub increased, it seemed that nothing short of a world war could cause at one time as much commotion, as much hectic debate and as universal interest as this duel of padded mitts between a scholarly, scientific young champion of 29 and a two-fisted, rip-tearing slugger of 32 trying to batter his way back to the top of the pugilistic ladder.

Dempsey, on the crest of a wave of popularity and sentiment that attaches itself to so flaming a comeback, seemed destined to enter the ring a favorite, so far as the crowd was concerned, but the general pre-battle consensus regarded the outcome as a toss up. Betting odds on a knockout favored Dempsey, conceded to be the harder puncher of the two, but the majority of newspaper experts have gone on record in support of Tunney.

Challenger's Support Unusual.

Such strong support for a challenger, in the face of ring history that always has made champions pronounced favorites, was itself unprecedented but it was only one of the record breaking angles. Whether it was the size of the crowd, the amount of the gate receipts, the extent of the radio hookup, the immensity of the newspaper and press association operations, the number of assembled critics or the various financial arrangements—all surpassed anything in fistic annals.

Tunney was assured an unprecedented purse of $1,000,000, regardless of whether he retains or loses his grasp on the principal sceptre of the prize ring. Dempsey adds $450,000 to a collection of ring earnings that already have run well over $2,000,000 to prove beyond a doubt that the Manassa Mauler is the greatest drawing card in boxing history.

Rickard's Weather Luck.

The traditional weather luck of the man who pulls the strings to this epoch-making sports show, Tex Rickard, seemed as good as ever in the prediction of clear weather. It was likely to be cool enough, however, to cause the crowd to bundle up as it usually does for football games and provide a sharp contrast to the shirt sleeved, sweltering throng that saw Dempsey maul his way to the title against Jess Willard on the Fourth of July, eight years ago, at Toledo, or the soaked and dripping mass of humanity that watched Tunney pound Dempsey off the peak at Philadelphia a year ago.

Guided by Tex Rickard, the showman who has raised his ante for the principals in 21 years from around $35,000 to a purse of $1,450,000, boxing promotion scales its highest and most vivid peak in the country's biggest arena before a gathering of society, millionaire business dealers, and figures high in public life, occupying the choicest $10 seats.

The Outer Darkness.

Mere fandom at large will border the outer darkness of this notable ringside cast, paying from $5 for a bird's-eye view, an eighth of a mile from the ring, up to $40 for less favored sections of the "ringside" area.

The principal actors in this biggest of boxing dramas, heavily guarded, were near the scene of combat early. Dempsey spent the night in a Chicago hotel while Tunney was to arrive early in the morning to go into seclusion preliminary to the ceremony of weighing-in early this afternoon.

Dempsey's hopes of victory and a comeback to the heights he held for seven years were built on the rushing, give-and-take fury of his attack.

The Champion's Reliance.

The champion's reliance was in his footwork, his counter-attacking effectiveness and resourcefulness, as well as in a stamina that has enabled him to weather many a flurry of gloves.

Youth and speed were in the title-holder's favor; hitting and aggressiveness in the challenger's favor.

Tunney's right eye was a factor that concerned many of those speculating on rival chances. It was injured and cut twice in training. Under careful treatment it has healed rapidly and completely, to outward appearance, but it may be subject to renewed and fateful damage if one of Dempsey's short left hooks lands a glancing blow.

Who Will Officiate.

The selection of the referee and judges who will decide the issues remained a matter of speculation today. Their identity, known only to members of the State Athletic Commission and possibly the fighters and their managers, was to be kept a carefully guarded secret until shortly before the main bout.

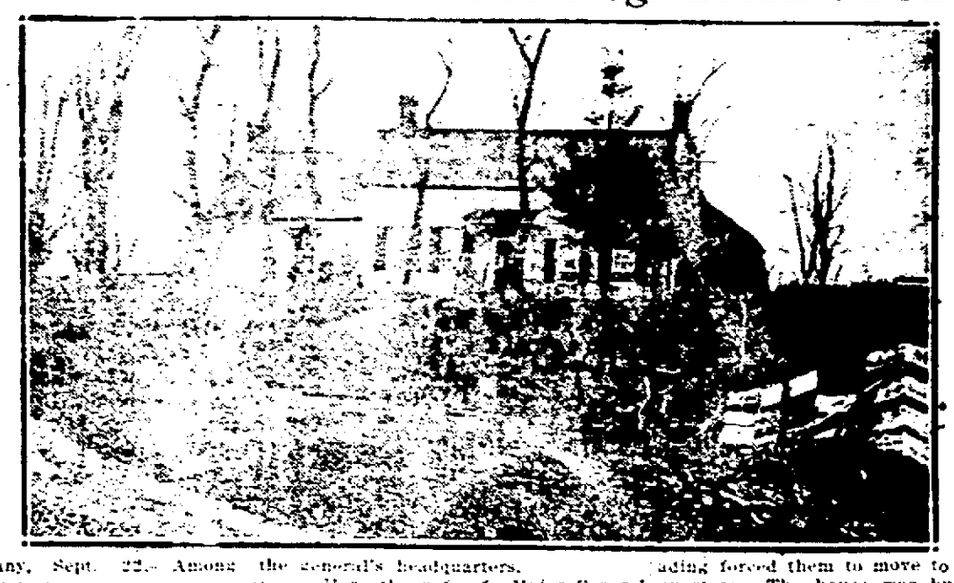

The boxing authorities have taken all possible precautions to meet emergencies arising in case of disputes in the ring or claims of foul. Barring anything untoward, the judges and referee will decide the issue, but if a foul occurs, the commissioners, official physician, as well as judges and referee, will confer before a final decision is rendered.

The day of battle found all legal barriers cleared. The final attempt to obtain an injunction, brought by the Coliseum Club on the basis of an old contract with Dempsey, was dismissed yesterday.

Will Start at 9:45.

The big battle was to start at approximately 9:45 p. m., Chicago daylight time, under last minute agreement, but this was subject to change. In the event of threatening weather, Rickard said, it would be moved ahead of schedule. The preliminary bouts were to start at 8 p. m.

Historic Marshall House Still Standing In the Saratoga Battlefield Area

Albany, Sept. 22.—Among the few original structures now standing in the old Saratoga battlefield area is the Marshall House about one mile north of Schuylerville, where Baroness Riedesel with her three small children and wounded British soldiers sought refuge in the basement when an American battery across the Hudson bombarded the house believing it to be the British general's headquarters.

Here the wife of Major General Riedesel found time not only to care for her children but she ministered to the sufferers "like an angel of light and comfort". She made them broth, dressed their wounds, and comforted the dying.

Eleven cannon balls passed through the house. The British had intended to use the structure as a hospital but the American cannonading forced them to move to other quarters. The house was built by Peter Lansing of Albany in 1773 as a farm house.

The basement and timbers of the dwelling are the ones used in the original structure and marks of the cannon balls can still be seen. The house is on a bluff west of the highway and an iron sign a short distance from the road calls attention to the old house.

Syracuse to Use White Football

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP).—A white football instead of the regulation tan leather sphere will be used here Saturday at the opening of the Syracuse University gridiron season, university officials announced today. The purpose of the experiment, it was said, is to make the game more interesting for the spectators.

Later in the season football followers in New York city will be given an opportunity to see the whitened ball in use, when New York University and Alfred University hold their annual meeting. Coaches of both squads have been connected with Syracuse University.

Heating Industry Active.

Hats Carry Lights

A luminous hat has been designed in England for women, to protect them from being run down by automobiles on highways at night. Designs painted in glowing chemicals are plainly visible at some distance, so that motorists can see the women in time to avoid striking them.

No Room Left For Usual Alibis

That Is If One is Going to Take Pre-Battle Statements of Fighters and Managers for Their Face Value.

Chicago, Sept. 22 (AP).—No room is left for alibis in the pre-battle statements of Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey, and their managers, Billy Gibson for Tunney and Leo P. Flynn for Dempsey.

Tunney is "quite confident". Dempsey is "ready this time and will win decisively". Gibson is "very certain". Flynn "predicts a knockout by Dempsey".

If any "hollow shells" are discovered in Soldier Field late tonight, it will be a great surprise to this supremely confident quartet.

"My first defense of my title," said Champion Gene, "finds me quite confident I will be victorious. I have reached the very peak of condition. I am even more certain I will win tonight than I was when I first engaged Dempsey at Philadelphia last year".

"I am ready for Gene Tunney this time", said Challenger Jack, "I will win decisively. I think I am good enough now to finish Tunney inside of seven rounds. If he happens to last the limit, I am sure I will be far enough out in front to win the decision".

"I feel very certain that Tunney will decisively defeat Dempsey," said Gibson, "probably by a knockout inside of seven rounds. If Dempsey fights fairly and squarely I do not see any possibility for any other outcome".

"I predict a knockout for Dempsey in three rounds", said Flynn, "if Tunney is mad enough about that 'open letter' to start fighting at the first bell. If Tunney takes the defensive from the start it may take Jack seven rounds".

Side Lights on Chicago Battle

Chicago, Sept. 22 (AP).—The greatest gathering of newspaper men in boxing history will "cover" the Dempsey-Tunney battle tonight. More than 1,200 press tickets have been issued but less than 400 of these provided for seats in the four ringside rows, where 140 telegraph wires will carry stories of the fight to all parts of the world. The highest previous total of newspaper experts accommodated at a fight was 250, for the Carpentier-Dempsey bout of 1921.

Honors were even in the preliminary wrangling of the fight managers with the boxing commission, Dempsey won the argument for six feet of adhesive tape about his gauze bandages, instead of only four feet as Tunney wished. Tunney won the verdict for a larger ring, 20 feet instead of 18.

Ticket brokers, the legitimate ones who made their purchases at Rickard's box office windows in small lots early in the game, were unloading their tickets early today at cut rates.

A long distance telephone call to his mother in New York was one of Gene Tunney's final acts before retiring last night, he also wrote her a long letter.

Expert engravers will be at many gates to inspect tickets as a precaution against the $500,000 worth of counterfeit pasteboards which Tex Rickard believes are in circulation.

Fight Reports at Brown's.

Frank L. Brown, Willard Battery agent, will get the returns of the Tunney-Dempsey world championship bout at his store on Broadway tonight. His radio will be situated so that the returns, blow by blow, will be audible to passersby.

Hurling for the Providence club of the National league, Charles "Old Hoss" Radbourne won 18 straight games during the period from August 7 to September 6, 1884.

Ed Taber, bespectacled hurler who tried out with the Phillies this spring, recently pitched two games in one day in the Eastern league and allowed a total of five hits.

Tagging Major League Bases

(By The Associated Press)

Sam Gibson held the Hugmen to 5 hits and had a shutout in the palm of his hand until one man was out in the last of the ninth. Then Babe Ruth knocked the ball into the right center-field bleachers. The Tigers won the contest, 6-1. The Yanks had the bases filled in the seventh when Tony Lazzeri grounded weakly to Gibson. Ten errors were written into the box score and the Yanks contributed six of them.

New York has seven games left to play and Ruth needs four more home runs to equal his 1921 record.

Horace Lisenbee held the St. Louis Browns to five hits yesterday and shut them out, 10-0. The Senators batted out 14 hits, Ganzel, a recruit, hitting safely in four trips to the box.

A double by Red Rollings in the last of the ninth gave the Boston Red Sox a 3-2 win over Chicago. Tony Welzer let the white Sox down with six hits and was aided by fast fielding. Two double plays by the Boston infield pulled him out of tight places.

After Cleveland had taken the opening game of the series from Philadelphia 6-5, Tyrus Cobb left the Mackmen for a hunting trip into Wyoming. The Georgian said Manager Mack had offered to renew his contract for next year, but that he had not decided whether he would play another year of baseball.

Pittsburgh defeated Brooklyn in the only game played in the National League.

The Pirates found Doug McWeeney in the fourth inning for all their runs in a 4-2 victory.

The victory sent Pittsburgh into the important four game series with the Giants with a lead of three and one half games. New York's feeble pennant chances for the National League flag rests almost wholly upon the ability of the Giants to sweep the series. The Giants are in a trying position. If the Cards sweep the Boston series and New York breaks even with Pittsburgh, the Giants will find themselves in third place.

The Pittsburgh Pirates announce the purchase of Fred Fussell, southpaw pitcher, from Wichita Falls, Texas league.

Title Fight Here Tonight

The Tunney-Dempsey championship scrap will not be the lone tilt for supremacy in a coveted field of sport tonight as the West Shore and the U. & D.-Cornell teams, now tied for honors in the Industrial League will battle for supremacy on the Athletic Field at 5:45 o'clock this evening.

The big bout at Chicago will mean a lot to the world at large but the Industrial League championship although not internationally famous will be a little world series to the fans who witnessed the Industrial League games at the Athletic Field throughout the national sport season. The game will start at 5:45 in order to allow the total number of innings usually played in the league to be completed. The slight chill that now creeps upon the fall evenings is not expected to have any effect on the attendance at the game.

The first game of the series was taken by the West Shore with Carpenter on the mound and he no doubt will be sent to the hill again this evening. It is expected that Dick Williams, veteran hurler of the U. & D.-Cornell nine will work in the box for the downtown railroaders who copped the second tilt of the series.

Peters and Black will be the reserve hurlers of the downtown railroaders while R. Williams and Bush will be ready to assume the hurler's task should they be called upon by Manager Benks of the West Shore.

After five years as a "farm hand," George Pipgras has landed a regular job with the New York Yankees.

Athletic Ass'n Drive Under Way

The Kingston High School Athletic Association's annual membership drive is well under way at the high school. The membership fee is still the same as last year's fee.

Each year the Athletic Association makes a drive for members about this time. The membership fees are used to purchase equipment for interschool games and to pay the various expenses of the inter-class leagues. The bankers of the various roll call rooms are in charge of the signing up of the members and competition is keen to see which shall secure the per cent membership first.

So far this year approximately 250 students have joined. Although the officials are pleased with this showing they expect to secure the remainder before another fortnight elapses. Room 14 is the first to report 100 per cent with Senior rooms 10, 11, 12 and 13 closely following.

HALF-TIME FEET CAN'T DO FULL-TIME WORK!

TAKING 18,908 steps a day with bothersome achy feet is an overwhelming handicap. Sooner or later you're going to slow down — and perhaps lose out. Play fair with yourself — and your career. Get your feet right and you widen the "Circle of your Activity" to where it belongs. Wear good-looking shoes, of course. But insist upon a real walking base instead of merely a foot covering.

Healthy, vigorous, comfortable feet are assured by wearing the Arch Preserver Shoe. The concealed, built-in arch bridge prevents sagging and straining. The flat inner sole, crosswise, prevents pinching of nerves and blood-vessels. The special modeling of the sole supports the metatarsal arch. These features are patented; they are found in no other shoe. The Arch Preserver Shoe is superior not merely because of one feature, but because all of its features are right.

Put yourself on a "full schedule" by wearing the double-value Arch Preserver Shoe. You'll understand why you need this shoe when you check up with our "Foot Aches Chart."

Styles for all occasions. Let us show you.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

Those fans who feel that listeners have some rights and that however good the program it is piling it on pretty thick when 57 stations conspire to hammer a "booster" program into their ears, are grateful to WBBM, WHT, CNRO and CNRM, the only worth while stations that did not join the union on Wednesday night. For four long hours the uniform program of the united chains was the only thing available from the 57 stations that had united to boost the radio business by boosting the Radio Show in New York. Late in the evening KYW broke out with a program of its own, making five good stations with programs not made for them by the combined chains. The whole performance was a convincing demonstration of the chain system at its very worst, a tyrant of the air, forcing what it chooses on listeners. The program was a good one, excepting a few deadly dull spots, but that is no reason why a regular dose, however high class, should be forced on everybody. Even WLS either joined the chain or was overwhelmed by it. The best reception of Werrenrath was from what seemed to be WLS, although it might have been WSM.

Somebody that must have been Will Rogers (the voice sounded like his and the wit was of his kind) got off some real humor. It must have been Rogers, as there was a violent spell of fading by all stations while the man was talking and fading always follows and overtakes Rogers when he broadcasts.

With the exception of this fading spell reception was excellent, with no buzzer and little static.

Two accidents occurred Monday on the state road between Modena and Plattekill. The other accident was due to the road being slippery after the rain. A Studebaker car coming south from Modena skidded when the brakes were applied. MISS SCHRYVER WRITES OF EUROPEAN TRIP.

Miss Edith E. Schryver, landscape architect of Kingston, who sailed from Quebec, Canada, June 10, for Europe, where she is studying foreign landscapes, recently communicated with friends here and wrote that she expected to visit Spain before October and spend two weeks there. Miss Schryver was in Nice, France, when she wrote.

Miss Schryver as the member of a party arrived in Glasgow, Scotland, on June 19, and from there went to England, where she stayed in London. A very thrilling ride in an airplane was experienced in traveling from London to Brussels, Belgium, in two hours with twelve other passengers in the aircraft. Miss Schryver stated that the trip was the most comfortable in her travels and all were furnished with large wicker chairs. From Brussels the trip was made to the Rhine river district, Germany, where the famous old castles were visited. A visit was paid to the village of Garmisch at the foot of the Bavarian Alps, the snow-capped summit of which was reached in a cable car. The party lingered for too long a stay on the mountain top and missed the last cable car to the village. A walk of 7 miles down the mountain although tiresome was thoroughly enjoyed by all for a most gorgeous sunset and the rising of a beautiful moon made the journey over the otherwise obscured mountain trail a most pleasant one. Flashes of lightning in the distance were visible to the party and with the snow-capped mountains as a setting made a very picturesque scene. Miss Schryver was particularly impressed with the village of Garmisch and said that walks through the community were very inspiring, and encouraged one to prolong a visit. From Germany the party went to Italy, where Venice, Florence and Rome were visited. Genoa was the destination upon leaving Rome and the tourists finally arrived in Nice. The trip along the edge of the Mediterranean was a very delightful one, Miss Schryver stated. After a stay in Barcelona, Spain and Paris, France, Miss Schryver and the party will sail for America on the Aquitania on October 15.

Swedish Wedding Custom

In Sweden weddings formerly took place under cover of night. Behind the high altar of the ancient church at Husaby, in Gothland, a collection of large lances with sockets, for torches, may yet be seen. These were served out to the groomsmen on such occasions, both for defense and illumination. Those men were the best who could be found to volunteer their services. One wedding superstition that a bride, on leaving home for the wedding trip, must step into the carriage with the right foot first. She should do the same when she first enters the home prepared for her after the bridal trip.

Butterfat Human Need

Food scientists, whose efforts to find the greatest food values have increased year by year, find that generally the people are the healthiest in those countries where butterfat makes up a large per cent of the diet. The Chinese people are a diminutive race and not particularly healthy. Butter is not used by the Chinese except by a small but growing number of the wealthier classes. Normal consumption of butter there is estimated at only 2,000,000 pounds per annum, while China has a population of 446,000,000. The average American eats 20 times more butter in a day than the Chinese eats in a year.

Boudoir Gowns in Generous Variety

Varied Models for Informal Wear Enable Milady to Suit Individuality.

There was a time when not much range in negligees was expected. Women wore frilly "wrappers" or severe kimonos and little effort was devoted to styling them correctly. It was a matter of choosing one's most becoming color and letting it go at that. Today, observes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, there are so many types of negligees shown that the most exacting woman will have no difficulty in finding a becoming model. And since styling, which we associate with gowns, has been creeping into the realm of the negligee, it is expected that a woman in tea gown, boudoir coat, satin pajamas or silk negligee will not only manage to achieve an effect of becomingness but will also follow some style which suits her personality best. Of the various negligees shown, there is first the dignified and formal tea gown, which is almost a dress. Several models have been developed in brocade that could almost have passed for dinner gowns. One in black brocaded in gold had a straight panel front and back. Long wing-shaped draperies of black georgette fell from the shoulders and made twin fish-tail trains that dragged on the ground. Another model of the same type was in jade green brocaded in gold. It was slightly draped at the side front and caught there with a gold buckle. The sleeve draperies of jade chiffon were sewed down the panel back, joining at the bottom in a pointed effect which formed a sort of train that trailed gracefully as the wearer walked.

Coats as Evening Wraps.

Very interesting models are boudoir coats that can be used as evening wraps. One in pink georgette, brocaded in silver, had bandings of plain pink at the neck, sleeve and hem. It would have been a delightful accompaniment to a georgette frock of the same tone. Another coat was of black, brocaded in gold. It was banded around all its edges with cerise velvet. It was a versatile garment, for it could have been worn over a plain satin slip for a tea gown, with plain satin trousers to serve as smoking pajamas, or, as was said at first, as an evening wrap. The styling was simple, but the richness of the brocade and the beauty of the color scheme would have attracted favorable notice in any gathering. A new note in negligees is the Vionnet type of reversible garment. It is cut with great attention to detail and line. One model was developed in peach, lined with powder blue, or, since it was really reversible, one could say that it was powder blue lined with peach. The fabric was a soft satin which draped well and fell in graceful and becoming lines. From whichever side one viewed the garment the outer color gained added attractiveness from the colored lining, having almost an opalescent effect.

Ostrich Used as Trim.

Ostrich is a very new and good trim on many fall models. While it is fluffy and becoming, it gives a certain note of elaboration which some women will not care for. To please those who wish something simpler than ostrich, yet something that is equally as soft and flattering, some of the smartest shops are offering marabou. This is a trimming which adds a little warmth and is thus as practical as it is attractive. Gold lace, too, is being featured again. A peach chiffon model is being shown which has a broad band trimming of this lace, and the lace itself is further enriched with satin rosebuds. Sometimes the gold lace is used on broche velvet and then the effect is truly sumptuous.

Gold or silver lame sometimes fashions the coat or tunic of a pajama suit. The Parisienne has at last been definitely converted to pajamas, and elaborate versions of this mode replace the house dress and tea gown.

Coolie coats retain their popularity. They are seen as beach robes and have invaded the homes as breakfast coats and lounging robes. Some shops have had the clever idea of offering separate black satin trousers. These can be combined with the coolie coat or the always beautiful and richly embroidered Mandarin coat. The latter garment has never quite passed out of favor as an evening wrap, while retaining its popularity as a lounging robe. It is not a new note in fashion, but it is an enduring one. Coolie coats are appearing as evening wraps, too. In this case the finer fabrics and lovelier designs are sponsored. One havre coat in heavy black crepe has no embroidery or stenciling on the outside. The lining was gorgeous but the exterior was so sober that it could have served very well as a formal afternoon wrap. The coolie garment, which first appeared in cotton or in silk, is now appearing in challis for fall wear and thus affords the pleasant promise of warmth for chilly days.

For fall, too, is offered a quilted robe. It is developed in satin, crepe de chine, gros de Londres or taffeta. One smart model was shown in plain taffeta. The plain fabrics have wool and silk embroidery as adornment, while some of the black satin quilted robes were even hand painted. For this purpose, Japanese designs were offered; a quantity of gold and silver is being used in the patterns.

Robes in Wash Silk.

Descriptions of the current mode in negligees should not neglect Puelinan robes. These are of any simple styling. Frequently they are developed in wash silk. The main features are their dark coloring, which is generally black or navy, their simplicity of cut and the matching envelope bag which accompanies them.

Possibly the latest thing in lingerie is the use of black point d'esprit. Recent imports in this material are being shown in complete outfits, including gown, chemise and step-ins and the always-popular step-in chemise model.

The elegance movement is coming over from Europe in the lingerie France and Belgium are sending us. There is a tendency to keep the general effect simple, but to achieve genuine elegance through the use of real lace. This lace is appliqued on or set on with fine handwork. Sometimes drawn work appears, too, and almost always one finds the tiny hand tucks and the infinitesimal plaits for which the French lingerie maker is famous. One lovely set in peach georgette owed its especial charm to the way in which tucks and plaits were used to shape the garment. The georgette brassiere had its fullness held in place at top by hand tucks. These blossomed into fine plaits to effect a curved line over the bust. Then this fullness again was taken out by means of tucks caught into a band under the bust. The same shaping appeared in the nightdress. This garment showed unusually clever styling. It was cut with a high neckline and had cap sleeves with a long, loose armhole. A wide sash caught up the front fullness. This gown was intended to serve as a negligee as well as sleeping garment if desired. All the edges of this outfit were finished with self scallops, made not by cutting and shaping the material, but by catching it down cleverly at regular intervals with a stitch. The brassiere had a double row of the scalloping.

"Raven" Written in Street?

"The Raven," Edgar Allan Poe's immortal poem, was scribbled on the edges of a theater program as the author stood under a street light at Bleecker street and Broadway, New York, at midnight in the rain and sleet of a stormy winter night. At least, this was the contention of the late Dr. Cornelius Mathews, devoted friend of Poe's. The story was recalled recently when the only autographed copy of the poem passed from a private owner to the hands of collectors. Manuscript experts say there is no other American literary document of comparable value outside the libraries; its worth is estimated at $50,000.

Printed Daisies, Fall Fashion Shown in Paris

A dress of printed daisies is among the Paris modes for fashionable women who desire the latest in fall wear.

Revival of 1830 Dresses With Bouffant Skirts

A reaction towards the regime of the empire seems to have come over Paris—that is, in the trend of styles in recreation and in clothes.

Paris society is reviving the cotillions of the past century.

These dances may be responsible for the revival of the 1830 dresses with bouffant skirts often elaborately decorated. Young women have shown preference for the quaint, full-skirted dresses. For the most part, the gowns are made of taffeta but much chiffon velvet and some lace also is used.

One of the robes de style, launched by the house of Lenif, has bright red poppies appliqued on a tight bodice and full scalloped skirt of white taffeta.

In harmony with the tendency toward "old-fashioned" costumes, the tulle cape with elaborate patterns worked in narrow valenciennes lace has been designed. These capes hang down well to the hem of the dress in back and barely cover the elbows at the sides. Some are cut with a long point in back and fasten with ribbons in a fichu front.

Reboux's contribution to the swing toward the styles of the empire days is a collection of hats with lace ruffled brims, a frill of lace being sewed just under the edge of the hat, which is small and frames the face.

These styles may be influencing the mode of hairdressing, for in Paris today the boyish bob is almost as far behind the style as the old-fashioned pompadours of our mothers' girlhoods.

Feminine line has triumphed and all those who wield the scissors, dressmakers and coiffeurs alike, are cutting with new ideals of lines that are softening and womanly.

Little curls that lie close to the ears and the forehead, or nestle at the nape of the neck are advocated by Paris dressers as an antidote for the sleek, mannish haircut of last winter. For those who cannot go so far as curls there are soft waves and mild frizzes.

Silk Velvet, Brushed Nap, on Fashion Card

Milliners predict that silk velvet with a brushed nap like a man's silk hat will be a cofavorite with felt for winter. The upstanding velvet, which was launched without much success last winter, will not be revived, it is generally understood.

The new velours is very soft and pliable and will lend itself to small tucks and to draping even better than felt, the modistes say. Some of the advance winter hats Paris is seeing now are of the brushed velours. Most of them have irregular brims, or no brim at all.

Slippers, Bags, Flowers Made of Silver, Gold Kid

Silver and gold kid have come to be used for many things in Paris. The bootmakers originally discovered its charm. Then the bag manufacturers and novelty designers took it up.

Now it is possible to buy slippers, handbag and shoulder flower in the same kid. Perugia often uses dainty painted flowers on the gold and silver slippers and handbags which he designs.

Wide Wave Best

Whether you have a marcel, permanent or finger wave, whether your hair is long or short—style experts in hair dressing agree that the wave should be loose, flat and widely spaced, imitating as closely as possible a natural wave.

New Wool Brocades

Wool brocades are among the new materials Paris is making into coats. Self-colored or two-toned, the fabric makes pretty topcoats suitable for sports use or motoring.

Laborers Were Few

The Lord appointed other seventy, also, and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place, whither He Himself would come. Therefore said He unto them, the harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few.—Luke x. 1 and 2.

STUDEBAKER COMMANDER

1—Sets new coast-to-coast record!

2—Wins 1st and 2nd places in Atlantic City Stock Car Race!

3—Climbs Pikes Peak—22 mins. 47 secs.

During the first week of September, The Studebaker Commander, by thrilling victories over time and space, again proved itself "the greatest achievement of post-war automotive engineering."

Endurance—Stamina—Dependability

New York Harbor to San Francisco Bay in 77 hours and 40 minutes—total elapsed time. You may not have Ab Jenkins' craving to shatter records, but you will find in the car which he used dependability, freedom from repair expense, long life, and abundant, eager power for all your needs.

Speed—Smoothness—Comfort

In the 75-mile race for stock cars listed below $2000, at Atlantic City on Labor Day, two Studebaker Commanders finished first and second, with average speeds of 85.95 and 84.58 miles per hour. The latest models of Chrysler "72," Buick Master Six, Nash Advanced Six and Hudson were also entered.

You won't ever want to go that fast, but you can find daily use for the acceleration, the smoothness, the comfort which the quiet Big Six motor offers at ordinary speeds.

Mountain-Climbing

In the stock car race to the top of Pikes Peak on Labor Day, The Commander was second only to a car which lists at three times The Commander price.

Thus we not only claim but prove that this versatile automobile will outperform any other car within a thousand dollars of its price.

No wonder The Commander outsells the combined totals of all the other cars in the world that equal it in rated power.

NEW LOW PRICES

All Studebaker models have more than $100 in extra equipment without extra cost, including front and rear bumpers; shock absorbers; coincidental lock to steering-ignition; engine thermometer and hydrostatic gasoline gauge on dash; etc.

Gained on the Diet

"What have you been doing to yourself? You look different somehow," said one friend to another.

"Why, I have been dieting," replied the second friend. "For two months I have cut out all fats, white bread, most sweets—the regulation reducing diet, you know."

"You brave thing, and how much flesh have you taken off?" asked the first friend.

The second woman laughed a chagrined laugh. "I have gained just four pounds on that reducing diet," she said.—Springfield Union.

Love and Lilac Time

The lilac is an oriental blossom, coming to us originally by the way of Turkey and Spain. It is supposed to be the flower of love and lovers, marking the heyday of spring. The love lore of the "mayflock," to give it an old world name, is varied and pleasant. A spray of white lilac, buried on the eve of a new May moon, is a maidenly charm which maidens practiced, believing that by the time the lilac died they would have the heart of the man they desired.

Varying Vocabularies

The University of Iowa has issued a list of 10,000 words most accurately used in writing. It has been estimated that 8,000 words are a good average vocabulary. It has also been estimated that a 1,000-word vocabulary is the average for a laborer. The estimated vocabulary of the high school students varies so widely that they hesitate to quote figures. It ranges from 2,000 to 4,000 and 5,000.

Academy Grads Meet at Banquet

Will Rose and Miss Helen Fawcett Meet Unexpectedly at Banquet in Erie, Pa., Where Both Were Speakers.

The wide influence of old Kingston Academy was noted again on Tuesday evening of this week when two former schoolmates of the historic educational institution met for the first time in 20 years as principals at a banquet of the Zonta Club of business and professional women of Erie, Pa.

They were Helen Fawcett, president of the club, and Will Rose, speaker of the evening.

Miss Fawcett attended Kingston Academy in '96 and '97 and will be remembered by many Kingstonians as a serious student who lived with her family on Elmendorf street and moved to Erie about that time. She has become a teller in the large Marine National Bank of the Great Lakes port of Northwestern Pennsylvania.

Will Rose was graduated from the old Academy in the class of '97. Some of his class mates were John T. Loughran, Newton H. Fessenden, Mrs. John Matthews, Mrs. Arthur Hester, Mrs. George F. Kaufman and others now prominent in Kingston and Ulster county. Rose is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Rose. He is the publisher of several country newspapers in Pennsylvania and has won some wide recognition as a contributor to Scribner's, Top Notch, Rotarian, Independent Woman and other magazines.

The unexpected meeting came as a great surprise to the participants and enlivened the dinner considerably. Miss Fawcett joshed Mr. Rose when she introduced him, recalling many humorous incidents of school days, and assuring her club sisters that she was surprised to find him not yet bald and still in possession of his youthful enthusiasm for life and the human family. Mr. Rose replied to the introduction in similar vein.

The speaker's subject was "Impertinent Comments on Success" and among other things he told the large gathering of business girls that, so far as he could observe, the report of the mental superiority of men over women had been grossly exaggerated.

Kingstonians who are interested may get an additional line on the philosophy of Will Rose, who has been called the Ed. Howe of Pennsylvania, in the October number of Independent Woman magazine which will carry his "Making Gossip Pay." The November number will carry his "Why Flirt with the Sheriff?" Both articles are addresses particularly to business women. For a more general audience, Scribner's will soon publish two of his essays known as "Small Town Opportunities," and "The Big Stick of the Small Town."

P.-T. A. FEDERATED COUNCIL PLANS PICTURE EXHIBIT

The Federated Council of Parent-Teacher Associations held its first meeting following the summer vacation on Wednesday afternoon with the new president, Mrs. Arthur H. Russell, presiding.

There was considerable discussion upon the subject of the state convention to be held in Binghamton October 3-7 to which the council and some of the local P.-T. A.'s are planning to send their presidents.

A letter was read from City Fire Chief Murphy inviting the council to send a delegate to the meeting at the Central Fire Station to be held this evening for the purpose of planning to celebrate Fire Prevention Week. Mrs. W. A. Longyear was appointed delegate.

Mrs. H. P. Dederick, Ulster county chairman, announced the conference of the presidents of the P.-T. A's. of Ulster county to be held in Kingston on Saturday October 29. It was voted to ask Miss Schnitzler and the domestic science class to serve the luncheon as they have done most satisfactorily for the past two years.

Much time was given to making plans for the "Travel Picture Stories of American Wonderlands" to be given by Charles E. Buck on Tuesday, October 18, at the High School auditorium under the auspices of the council. Superintendent Michael visited the meeting for a few moment to assist in deciding the hours for showing these pictures and the price of admission. It was decided to have two exhibitions, one at 3 p. m. for the benefit of the grammar school pupils, one at 8 p. m particularly for adults.

CELEBRATION AT GLASCO SATURDAY AND SUNDAY.

The sixth annual celebration of the feast of St. Cosmo and Damiano will be observed at Glasco Saturday and Sunday. The activities of celebration will start at 8:30 p. m. Saturday when a dance will be held at River View Park, followed by fireworks at 10:30.

The celebration will be a religious one Sunday when a low Mass will be said at 9 a. m. and a high Mass at 11 o'clock. At the latter the panegyric will be delivered by the pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Glasco, the Rev. Leo Turi Merusi. At 2 p. m. a parade will pass through the principal streets of the community led by Washburn's Band, which will also furnish music on other occasions during the celebration.

Weiner Hose Picnic.

A picnic will be held from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m. at Maple Hill Inn, Rosendale road, Sunday, September 25, by Weiner Hose Company, No. 6, and a cordial invitation is extended all to attend. Dancing will be held in the afternoon and evening. The event will be the third of the kind to be held by the firemen and is being promoted because the two previous picnics were thoroughly enjoyed by all who attended and many requests were made for the sponsoring of the picnic Sunday.

Coffee Tasters Need Keen Taste and Smell

Coffee tasting, as a professional ability, demands subtlety. There are only a few experts in the world, because rarely are the senses of taste and smell of sufficient natural keenness to distinguish coffee bases and blends and to catalogue accurately the delicate shades of taste and aroma.

More than a hundred different kinds of coffee are bought and sold in the United States, according to Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, coffee importer and noted sportsman. The expert who buys, blends and finally tastes coffee not only knows the characteristics of Mocha, Java, Santos, Guatemala and coffee grown in other districts; he is able to tell whether samples of each run true to variety standard.

Tasting coffee is a daily ceremonial in the offices of the large importing and roasting firms. On a revolving table the cook sets wide bowls of coffee, to which exact measures of cream and sugar have been added. Tall brass cuspidors stand beside the chairs, for the expert never swallows the coffee he is tasting.

Cup tests are blind. The cook stands by with a slip of paper on which is listed the blends in the different bowls. The coffee is tasted, and comment falls in a shower. It may be found unusually mellow, or lacking in body. Perhaps it is acid, winy, harsh, neutral or Rioy. Two more sets of characteristics are noted. Coffee may be musty, groundy, woody, grassy; or fall below standard as rank, sour, muddy or bitter. These factors in flavor influence the price at which coffee sells.

Humorous Definitions

London schoolboys either have an unusual penchant for what are generally known as howlers, or else the London schools have an unusually astute publicity agent. Anyway, says a correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor, not the least of the humor that enlivens the London press arises in that way. The latest group of juvenile atrocities is:

Cistercian: A garden plant with green leaves.

Macadam: The first Scotchman.

Boadicea: A dangerous serpent found in ancient Britain.

Theodolite: A saint mentioned in a poem by Browning.

Artisan: A kind of veil.

Holds World's Record by Marrying for Tenth Time

NEW ORLEANS, LA. (I-I-N).—"A stove that smokes, a parrot that swears and a cat that stays out nights don't make a good husband," declares Mrs. McDonald-Walter-Bronson-Burgess-Chavallier-Garden-White-Luigi-Hatfield-Willis of Urania, a suburb of this city.

"I believe in love," she added, when interviewed by reporters on the day after her tenth wedding.

Mrs. Willis got married for the first time when she was Carolyn Frost and 14 years of age. Now she's 53, and is still fond of the matrimonial ties.

In her 44 years of wedded life, Mrs. Willis has become a widow three times, and has gone through six divorce actions.

Her matrimonial record follows:—
No. 1.—Duff McDonald, 16 years.
No. 2.—Lee Walters, 2 years.
No. 3.—C. E. Bronson, 4 years.
No. 4.—Jack Burgess, 3 years.
No. 5.—P Chavallier, 2 weeks.
No. 6.—John Gardner, 2 months.
No. 7.—Charles White, 3 months.
No. 8.—George Luigi, 5 years.
No. 9.—B. Hatfield, 3 years.
No. 10.—John W. Willis.

"I just like to have a husband around," states Mrs. Willis. She explains that most of her divorces were caused by her husbands finding out she had a small fortune, and trying to wrest possession of it from her.

Taverns Played Big Part in Social Life

Taverns in the Colonial days and in the early days of the republic, especially in New England, were the most important part of all American social institutions. In addition to furnishing rest and refreshment for the traveler the tavern was a town hall, a court of justice, an auction room, a dancing assembly and sometimes a church and a playhouse.

In New England, until the repeal of the anti-theatrical law in 1793, play acting was rigorously banned as the most wicked of all the contrivances of the devil for destroying the virtue of the world.

However, from the motives of paternal kindness toward the populace, and in order that they should not be wholly without amusing diversions, pillories, stocks, whipping posts and bilboes were always set up near taverns so that when petty offenders were subjected to the operations of these pleasant devices the guests or loiterers of the taverns could hear the groans and cries of the victims while sipping their flip, punch or sack. Thus did our pious forbears furnish free moral entertainment of a realistic character, the very antithesis of play-acting.—Boston Globe.

History of Buttons

The button is a product of modern civilization, since the ancient peoples did not have any such form of holding their clothes together. They were first used for ornamental purposes. The next step was the use of the button and loop, the buttonhole being last in the development. Buttons were first employed in southern Europe in the Thirteenth and Fourteenth centuries. Their manufacture in England did not commence until the reign of Elizabeth. The earliest mention of the buttonhole in literature occurs in the year 1561. While men's outer garments are still made with buttons and buttonholes, the trend of the present is away from such fastenings. Almost all women's clothes and many men's undergarments are now made without buttons.

Bermuda Relies on Onion

The soil of Bermuda is particularly adapted to the cultivation of the onion. It consists largely of powdered coral and contains the elements which are most congenial to the onion. Moreover, the situation and climate of the island are such that the farmers are able to put their early onions into the markets of American cities at a time when they are peculiarly welcome.

As a result Bermuda has become virtually one great onion patch. The happiness of the island may be said to hang upon the onion. When there is a good crop and prices are good, the people are happy; when the crop fails, or prices are low, they are correspondingly depressed.

Art Nourished by Nature

I now understand why the Greeks were such great poets; and above all I can account, it seems to me, for the harmony, the unity, the perfection, the uniform excellence of all their works of art. They lived in a perpetual commerce with external nature, and nourished themselves upon the spirit of its forms. Their theaters were all open to the mountains or the sky. Their columns, the ideal type of a sacred forest, with its roof of interwoven tracery, admitted the light and wind. The odor and the freshness of the country penetrated the cities. Their temples were mostly unparthaic; and the flying clouds, the stars and the deep sky were seen above.—Shelley, in a letter to Peacock.

Superior to Radium for Special Purpose

In a garden just outside London is a curious factory. It is a little factory for extracting mesothorium, the substance that has almost entirely replaced radium for making luminous figures on watch dials and clock faces.

Mesothorium is far cheaper than radium, and is twice as powerful in making the phosphorescent paints that are used on the dials glow. Its drawback is that it has a shorter life than radium, its power of emitting alpha rays dying out in a few years.

The mesothorium is obtained from the rare earths used in the manufacture of incandescent gas mantles. It is a chemical process requiring great skill, care, and patience in gradually concentrating the radio-active element from the raw material.

Practically all the mesothorium used in England is extracted in a small laboratory in a London doctor's garden.

Every Man Will Have One!

Sedentary workers—those who sit at their work—especially might note that if they have the habit of crossing their legs, then can't break themselves of it, they should have a clean duster, or a remnant of a soft cloth, and lay it on the under leg. That at once stops the shine and wear that follow "crossing." And, as a duster is not always at hand, and "crossing" is always a temptation, best to cut the crossing habit clean out. A real and most saving economy.—London Answers.

Winners in Class A and B Derbies

Fliers Who Have Finished Race Watch for Their Less Fortunate Rivals—Eight Planes Which Left New York Have Not Yet Arrived—The Unofficial Winners.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 22 (AP).—Fliers who finished in three overland air races here watched the skies today for their less fortunate rivals who were scattered out to the east and south. Eight entries remained in the class A and B races from New York and three from the Pacific Coast derby which started from San Francisco.

C. W. Holman, St. Paul; E. C. Baltough, Chicago, and N. B. Namer, Spokane, were unofficially declared winners, respectively, of first, second and third places in the class A derby yesterday. Three planes were believed to be still heading for Spokane, in this event. Fifteen planes started. John P. Wood, Wausaua, Wis., came in fourth, and behind came E. K. Campbell, Moline, Ill.; E. H. Lee, Chicago; James Ray, Philadelphia, and E. W. Cleveland of Cleveland, Ohio.

Prizes for the class A derby are: First, $10,000; second, $5,000; third, $2,000; fourth, $1,000, and fifth, $500.

One plane in the A race crashed, with fatal results, two men being killed. Three others were forced out. Three others were delayed, but reported still ready to forge on.

Of the 25 pilots who started in New York Monday in the class B derby, the unofficial winners were declared to be C. W. Meyers, Detroit; Leslie Miller, Des Moines, and J. S. Charles, Richmond, Va., respectively. Eugene Detmer, Tarrytown, N. Y., came in third, but on the basis of elapsed time got fourth unofficial place. Five others who arrived in the order named, were W. H. Emery, Jr., Bradford, Pa.; E. G. Knapp, Ypsilanti, Mich.; Jack Ashcraft, Towanda, Pa.; K. R. Unger, Madison, N. J., and C. P. Monahan, Miles City, Mont.

Five other contestants in this race were to start from Missoula, Mont., today. Nine others were forced out early in the race, and two men, E. W. Fleet, Hartford, Conn., and Nimmo Black of Chicago, were unreported, but believed safe.

CAPTURE NEW HAVEN JAIL BREAKERS AT ONEONTA

Oneonta, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP).—State Troopers early today captured three prisoners who broke jail at New Haven, Conn., a week ago, charging them with second degree grand larceny for stealing the automobile in which they were speeding when caught near Sidney. A rifle, a revolver and ammunition were found in the car.

The men are William Mittler, 50; Charles Toth, 20, of Wallingford, Conn., and Kenneth J. Byrnes, 18, of Waterbury. Mittler, who escaped from New Haven while awaiting trial for the theft and forgery of $18,200 in money orders, had been in the Oneonta jail only a few hours when he was found sawing the bars of his cell.

The prisoner admitted breaking jail, Chief of Police Horton said, and also disclosed that they had stolen three automobiles in their travels since leaving New Haven. It was the theft of the last car, taken here last night as they were attempting to reach Binghamton where Mittler formerly worked, that led to their arrest. One machine was taken in Waterbury, Conn., and another in Scranton, Pa.

Byrnes was serving time for burglary and Toth for the theft of an automobile.

First Clue of Missing Teacher

Missing Teacher From Corning Identified in Middletown on Labor Day —Was in the Custody of Two Men.

Corning, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP).—The first clue as to the whereabouts of Miss Jeanie E. McClure, Corning school teacher, believed to have been kidnapped at Johnson City, August 31, was revealed today by Detective John A. Doyle, of Rochester, who reported she was identified at Middletown, N. Y., on Labor Day, in custody of two men.

The identification was made by Mrs. D. R. Hawley, of Rochester, and her daughter, Thelma, aged 15, who were guests of the former's sister, Mrs. W. B. Auty, Middletown, at the time the girl was seen.

Mrs. Hawley states that she was in the refreshment booth conducted by Mrs. Auty at Middletown, when the two men and the girl came in and ordered sandwiches. The girl placed a long distance call to New York, but the men refused to let her talk, forcing her to return to the car after they had eaten.

Mrs. Hawley said she recognized the girl from photographs printed in the Rochester newspapers, pointing out the clothing she wore as identical, including the sash on her dress, and the wrist watch and string of pearls, that had been given her by her uncle, Duncan McClure, of Johnson City on the day she disappeared. Mrs. Auty who has been communicated with confirms the identifications.

One of the young men was described as being well dressed, neat and well educated, of quiet manner and of a commanding nature, while the other appeared to be an Italian.

PAN-AMS WHITEWASHED BY BECKWITH CLUB

The recently organized Beckwiths of this city blanked the Pan-Am baseball club at the Saugerties road diamond, Wednesday evening 1-0. Bernie Feeney registered the lone tally of the game in the final stanza after he had been walked, stole second, reached third on an error by Hart and crossed home plate when Quinn sacrificed.

The contest was an interesting one from the opening stanza until a quintet of innings had been played. Eddie Baker of the Beckwiths and Paul Joyce, Pan-Am hurler, hurled throughout the game and Baker proved the victor by not allowing a hit. Joyce was touched for one blow by Feeney in the second inning.

Sunday the Pan-Ams will oppose the Hasbrouck Engine Company of South Rondout. Eddie Scherer, veteran hurler, will do the twirling for the firemen.

The Beckwiths are scheduled to meet the Margaretville representatives on Saturday, October 1, at the mountaineers' play-ground. Arrangements are now being made to meet another fast club previous to the October engagement.

FIRE ON CORDTS STREET DISCOVERED IN TIME

Wednesday evening about 11 o'clock while Frank Myers, a neighbor, was glancing at the residence of Frank Naccarrato at No. 7 Cordts street, he saw a reflection of light in the kitchen windows, and looking in, discovered a fire in the wood box alongside the kitchen stove. The Naccarrato family had retired for the night and if the fire had not been discovered by Mr. Myers the residence would have been badly damaged by flames. As it was, the fire was soon extinguished with a few pails of water. It is thought it was caused by a lighted match or cigarette butt being thrown into the wood box. An alarm of fire was turned in from Box 15 to which the firemen responded but found their services were not needed.

Long-Buried Treasure Still Lures Seekers

Pacioma canyon, in the mountains east of San Fernando mission in California, contains, according to tradition, a great chest of gold beaten into the form of plates and platters for altar and dining service. Some estimates place the value of the treasure at $1,000,000. Pacioma canyon is wild and rugged but men have time and again tried to find the treasure. Aided by a map on a tanned sheepskin, sketched with a hot metal point by a San Fernando padre himself, the seekers have been unable to find the chest. If tradition is true history, the chest contains the largest assortment of gold plates and platters ever beaten into form by Indian smiths of any of the missions in the Californias, either below or above the Mexican boundary line. Rojerio Rocha, gold and silversmith at the San Fernando mission, not only helped beat the plates and platters, but he was one of the trusted party that hid the golden utensils when word came that United States soldiers were marching down the San Fernando valley. A few weeks before Rocha died he took from his old wooden chest a piece of tanned sheepskin, bearing traces of a hot metal point, and told one of his Indian friends it was a map showing the location of the buried gold. However, efforts to follow the map to the chest of gold have been futile.—Lannes McPhetridge, in the National Republic.

Nightingale No Right on Poetic Pedestal?

The poets have the nightingale all wrong. He is the noisiest, most inconsiderate, most obstreperous and jaunty bird in the whole kingdom of birds, H. D. Lawrence, writing in the Forum, asserts. How John Keats managed to begin his "Ode to a Nightingale" with: "My heart aches, and a drowsy numbness pains my senses," is a mystery to anybody acquainted with the actual song. You hear the nightingale shiverily shouting: "What? What? What, John? Heartaches and a drowsy numbness pains? tra-lala! tri-li-illyillyillyilly."

And why the Greeks said he, or she, was sobbing in a bush for a lost lover, again I don't know.

Because, in sober fact, the nightingale sings with a ringing, pinching vividness and a pristine assertiveness that makes a mere man stand still.

The nightingale is the most unsad thing in the world; even more unsad than the peacock full of gleam. He has nothing to be sad about. He feels perfect with life.

Finland's Claims to Fame

Finland is a land of superlatives. It is the northernmost republic on the globe; it was the first country to give absolute equal suffrage to women; it was the first nation to adopt prohibition; it has the greatest forest area of any country in Europe; it boasts the largest paper mill in Europe; it has the greatest number of lakes of any country—35,000—and it boasts of not merely a "thousand islands" but 30,000, says a travel writer in the Pathfinder Magazine. Finland for six centuries was under the sway of Sweden; then for a century it was dominated by Russia and finally, in 1918, the country attained its long cherished ambition and was formed into a republic. The government is headed by a President who is chosen for six years, and the laws are made by a diet consisting of a single chamber.

KEEP STORAGE BATTERY YOUNG

Evaporation of Water During Summer Needs Attention.

Experts who collect vital statistics on storage batteries say that the average battery's life span is only 14 months. A few motor car owners know how to lengthen battery life to 22 months. How do they do it?

In caring for your storage battery, you are in much the same position as a doctor caring for a patient's health. Too much heat will kill a battery, just as too much fever will kill a man. A battery will die of laziness if not kept at work.

Feeling a Battery's "Pulse."

Charging and discharging generates battery heat, which in turn causes evaporation of water. Therefore, keep the cells filled. In summer, when evaporation is greater, this will require weekly attention. Unscrew the cap of each cell and pour in distilled water. Distilled water is necessary because it contains no acid or impurities to start counter action. The solution should be about half an inch above the tops of the plates. Be careful not to overfill, because water on the top of the battery corrodes terminals. Dry the top of the battery and occasionally coat the terminals with vaseline.

To determine the strength of the solution, use a hydrometer gauge. The more nearly the gravity reading approaches 1.280—indicating a specific gravity of 1.28—the more nearly is the cell charged. If a cell goes dry, look for cracks in the jars. Don't run with the battery overcharged or undercharged—the meter on the dash will tell you if the battery is getting its supply of current. Overcharging ruins the battery by making it too hot. Undercharging means dim lights.

Changing Plates.

When plates need changing, it is really more economical to change the negative as well as the positive plates, even if the negative plates look "all right." Although it costs more to renew both sets of plates, a battery rebuilt with the old negative plates will cost more in the long run than would an entirely new battery, because the partly rebuilt battery lacks capacity.

Addition of new separators in the battery will often add many months to the battery's life.

Jay Walkers Punished by Paris Authorities

It costs a pedestrian 4 cents to cross a Paris street outside the traffic lanes. This is not a toll charge, but the minimum police fine, now authorized by the court of cessation in a recent decision that stripped the jay walker of what he thought were his rights.

Safety zones were resented in Paris and old-fashioned citizens twice took cases to the highest court when arrested for cutting across streets outside the dotted line.

Four cents isn't much, but the public arrest, trip to the police station, appearance in court and the expense of an attorney are the real penalties.

Various Traffic Rules Confusing to Drivers

An operator of a motor vehicle in the United States when driving any time and anywhere is probably breaking one or more traffic rules without being aware of it. It is almost impossible for the car owner to know all the traffic laws enforced throughout the country. Every state, city and town has its own pet rules of the road. During last year alone more than 2,500 new traffic bills were introduced in state legislatures, and the number which were made into laws averaged about a dozen for each state.

the headlights and to the part of the chassis below the radiator, the ends of the frame being bent at right angles. Mounted in this position, the tire will not interfere with the cooling and it also acts as a bumper.—Dale R. Van Horn, Walton, Neb., in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Palmer, millionaire clubman of Los Angeles, has wagered Vance $10,000 that he will not complete the 15,000-mile trip. Vance holds an endurance record of 127 hours and 56 minutes chained to the wheel of his machine in continual motion.

Fight Returns at K. of C.

Knights of Columbus members and their friends may receive the returns of the Tunney-Dempsey fight at the K. of C. Hall tonight.

Hoped He Was an M. D.

A young golfer on the lookout for a game was introduced by the caddie master to Doctor Jones, another player who had no partner. Doctor Jones was a quiet, serious man, who played an unemotional game. All went well until the third hole, where the younger player found that a perfectly good drive had ended unexpectedly in a shockingly difficult bunker. He glared at the ball, his face becoming more and more red. Then he turned to his opponent.

"Excuse me, sir," he said, "but before I play this accursed shot, do you mind telling me whether you are a D. D. or an M. D.?"

Four Derby Planes Missing

Financial and Commercial

New York, Sept. 22 (AP).—Despite strenuous efforts to stem the selling wave by marking up selected shares 2 to 4 points, prices gave way on the stock market today. The discriminating character of recent buying, coupled with the disappointing nature of some of the current trade reports, afforded the bears a pretext for extensive selling in which prices of many stocks melted away steadily.

Unmistakable signs of liquidation were evident in spots. New low prices for the year were made by Pathe Exchange, Briggs Manufacturing, National Bellas Hess and Foundation Company shares. Persistent selling of U. S. Steel, which fell three points to 151½, the lowest price of the week, had considerable weight in discouraging buying of other shares.

A 3 per cent drop in steel ingot production undoubtedly was largely instrumental in accelerating the decline of steel shares. The average for the entire industry was reported around 62 per cent of capacity, compared with 65 per cent in the preceding week and 67½ per cent two weeks ago.

A sensational drop of 14 points in Baldwin, which sold down to 240, followed announcement that only routine business was transacted at today's meeting of directors. Other high priced specialties, which ordinarily move widely, scored the largest breaks when the selling movement gained momentum. Baldwin, Case Threshing Machine, International Harverster, Eastman Kodak and American Snuff sagged 4 to 8 points. Selling of seasoned dividend paying railroads was effective in forcing down Atchison, Atlantic Coast Line, Norfolk and Western and Chesapeake and Ohio to the extent of 2 points or more.

Although banks called about $15,000,000 in loans early in the afternoon, the market continued well supplied with only a light demand.

Silver Fox With Dyed Edges Trims Fall Coat

Velvet Important Among Materials for Autumn

Velvet will be one of the most important materials for fall. The thin, artificial velvet and the chiffon velvets dominate fabric interest. There is also much cotton velvet for day wear. Corduroy velvet is shown by Patou in his collection of sports coats. Printed and shaded velvet, both for day and evening wear, are seen again and again.

Among the silk materials, which look as if they will play important parts in the making of the winter mode, are heavy crepe de chine, georgette in both light and heavy weight, crepe marocain, chiffon and crepe satin. Lelong, Martial et Armand and other houses have used also the plain old-fashioned black satin and satin and cire finish. The flat crepe materials are used by the leading sports houses, such as Jane Regny and Patou. Faille, silk poplin and a ribbed sultane are among the ribbed materials with a lustrous finish.

The small, close fitting crown looks as if it will be the favored type for fall. Brims are turned up in front or down all around, being shorter at the back and front than at the sides. Grosgrain, satin, velvet trimmings are being shown. The short nose veil shown by Reboux undoubtedly will influence the winter millinery mode. Reboux is also showing another color which is being used.

Chiffon remains the most important fabric; next comes georgette and crepe satin, for evening wear. A great deal of velvet will be worn for both day dresses and evening coats. The evening coat remains more important than the cape.

Lame is favored for ten gowns in combination with lace. Entire pajamas of crepe satin are shown by many houses. Taffeta is used for dressing gowns lined with crepe de chine or georgette. Pastel colors, such as orchid, mauve, pale green, pale old rose, peach, etc., are used for these garments. The same colors in brighter tones are used for pajamas, also black. Many coats of velvet are lined with crepe satin for mannish looking dressing gowns.

Flares to the Front in New Fashions for Fall

First and foremost among fall fashions come flares, says the Woman's Home Companion. Not obstreperous undisciplined flares but subtle flares, ingratiating flares, flares that know their place—so perfectly managed that at casual glance they seem little more than variations of the straight-line silhouette. The new flares indeed are not enemies of the straight line but allies to make it more interesting, more feminine, altogether more wearable. Godets, circular insets, plaits, jabots in assorted sizes and shapes, tucks, drapes, odd-shaped pieces and seams in unexpected places—all these go into the making of the new mode. The sum total is flare, discreet and modified to be sure, but flare for all that.

Purses Are Big Enough for Small Week-End Cases

The latest purses seen in Paris are big enough for small week-end cases, have no handle and are carried under the arm. They are a good eight inches deep, with rounded bottom, fourteen inches long, and fasten with a simple silver clasp. They come in shiny leather in gray, beige and other light colors. Other new purses go in for the modern geometric trimmings, either in narrow pipings or stitching. They have large clasps of semi-precious stones and are very smart.

New Cuff

A Lanvin gown of black lace has its three-quarters sleeve caught into a rhinestone bracelet cuff by eight strands of rhinestone.

Had Him Sized Up

N. Y. Milk Graft Inquiry Continued

New York, Sept. 22 (AP).—A story of purported graft, bribery, crookedness that permeated the milk and cream market in 1924, 1925 was told today by Harry Danziger, witness in the "John Doe" inquiry into alleged illegal conditions. Danziger, former general manager of the Metropolitan Milk Dealers' Association, recently a suspended sentence of two years imprisonment in 1926 for his part in the alleged extortions.

He testified today to aiding in the organization of a company to import "bootleg" milk into this city in association with Fred Kaufman, superintendent of the Milk Division of the Health Department, and Thomas J. Clougher, former secretary to Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, former health commissioner. He furnished all the capital, he said, and was to take one-third of the profits but his partners "double-crossed" him and the scheme collapsed.

Later, Danziger said, he joined Kaufman and Clougher again in a new extortion plan by becoming head of an organization known as the Milk Dealers' Credit Association to "fix" inspectors and milk prices. This scheme also became top-heavy, he testified, when the graft payments sapped all the resources of the association. Danziger saw the end coming, he said, and resigned, leaving the association treasury drained to the last penny.

Chevvy Family Holds Clambake

Employes of Local Chevrolet Agency With Wives and Friends Enjoy Bake at Torino's Inn as Guests of Roy M. Sutliff.

Several hundred clams, a quantity of chicken, lobster and other good things suffered a terrific slaughter Wednesday evening at Torino's Inn on the South Ashokan Boulevard when Roy M. Sutliff of Sutliff, Inc., local Chevrolet distributor, played host to his employes and their wives and friends. In spite of the best efforts of the Chevrolet salesmen, mechanics and ladies of the office force assisted by their lady and gentlemen friends and other guests, there still remained a few clams after the battle was over although the ground in the vicinity gave evidence of having suffered from a heavy shell barrage.

When the half hundred guests arrived at the Inn, the trip naturally being made in Chevrolet cars, they found the tables set in the grove laden with all of the good things which go to make up a first class clam bake.

The outing was the first affair to which the employes of Sutliff, Inc., have had the pleasure of having present their wives, husbands or sweethearts, as the case might be, and at the conclusion of the bake the affair had been such a success that everyone was in favor of making the event at least an annual one as suggested by Mr. Sutliff.

When several hundred clams, chickens, lobster and other good things had been disposed of, several of the men were called upon to entertain with after dinner talks. Jerry Martin of the sales force, being used to talking, was the only one who was able after disposing of the "feast" to get on his feet and do any prolonged entertaining. Jerry entertained with a parody on a well known poem and his offering was received with enthusiasm. Jerry promised next time to give his famous skit on "Salesmanship Instruction as Given by the Boss."

Alex. Ferguson of the Ferguson-Cadillac-LaSalle, Inc., agency in Kingston was one of the guests who was able to entertain with some witty stories in spite of the number of clams which he had disposed of. Several others were called on and at the conclusion of the talks a rising vote of thanks was proposed and given Mr. Sutliff for the evening's pleasure.

The bake prepared by Mr. Torino was faultlessly served and from the serving of the clam broth to the watermelon nothing was omitted. After the attacking forces had laid waste many pans of steaming hot clams and other things had been successfully stowed away, the party adjourned, determined to keep Chevrolet and Sutliff, Inc., in a prominent place on the map and hoping that again they would meet at a similar affair another year.

In Splendor, Venice Surpassed All Cities

In Venice of the Sixteenth century luxury and splendor surpassed all bounds; never before at any time nor in any city were religious ceremonies, victories, the conclusion of peace, the visits of foreigners, or the marriages of illustrious persons, celebrated with greater pomp and magnificence. Those in the occupations of cloth makers and drapers reaped huge fortunes, for on nearly every gala occasion miles of rich new fabric were used and visitors to the city were rendered speechless by the matchless spectacle. There was a great rivalry among the nobles to see who could appear in the processions in the most expensive robe of gold and velvet, while the richness and the hangings from balcony and carpets spread for the feet of the hour's hero strove to make themselves seen among the profusion of flowers, the countless flashing candles and the play of color. When some magnificent occasion of this sort was not in progress Venice was not permitted to be dull for a moment—there was always some carnival of merrymakers on the streets and masquerades were so common they became a nuisance and met with decrees forbidding them.—Detroit News.

Scarlet Uniform Not Conspicuous in Field

The writers of American school histories have frequently taken occasion to remark scornfully upon the scarlet uniform worn by the British regulars in the campaigns against the Indians during Colonial days, but, as a matter of fact, the scarlet coat of the Briton was a less conspicuous uniform than the blue subsequently adopted for the army of the United States.

Careful experiments have brought out the fact that light gray, such as that worn by the West Point cadets, is the color first lost to sight in the field. Scarlet comes next, with dark gray, blue and green in the order named. In target practice it has been found that of all colors scarlet is most difficult to hit. Light green is almost invisible under the violet tinge of electric lights, and would, therefore, be an excellent color for the uniforms of naval scouts who would be exposed to the rays of an enemy's searchlights.

Tracing Cliff Dwellers

The term "cliff dwellers" is used to designate the supposed extinct builders of the numerous cliff ruins scattered throughout the canyons of the Southwest, along the upper rivers of the Colorado and Rio Grande, in Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico. For a long time their origin was a subject of much discussion, but recent investigation has proved that these ruins are not the work of any extinct race, but were built by the immediate ancestors of the modern Pueblo Indians, some of whom, notably the Hopi, still have their villages on the summits of almost inaccessible mesas. Evidences of cliff dwellers have also been found in various parts of Europe, having existed during an early period in the history of man.

Disease Spread by Pets

It has been pretty generally understood for some time that domestic pets have the facility of imparting the germs of several diseases to those humans who come in intimate contact with them. Instances have been known where tuberculosis, mange, ringworm and some other diseases have been spread by household pets and now pyorrhea has been added to the list. Some persons foolishly allow dogs and cats to "kiss" them and the habit is a dangerous one. Even when uninvited to be so intimate dogs have a habit of licking the flesh of their owners whenever the chance offers and in so doing are liable to pass along the germs of pyorrhea.

Magic of a Smile

Cultivate optimism; look for the bright side of everything; smile persistently, there is magic in a smile. You can't worry much when the corners of your lips are turned up. Contrary to the usual opinion that we cry when we feel bad, William James, the great psychologist, maintained that we feel bad because we cry. Similarly, it is hard for us to feel bad when we persistently wreath our faces in smiles. The mental state tends to follow the physical expression.—Dr. Knight Miller, in Psychology Magazine.

WHO'S BOSS? ASK JACK—HE KNOWS!

By JACK Y. KEENE
International Illustrated News Sport Editor

It happens every time that Jack Dempsey is preparing for a fight—which isn't so often. In other words, the report has again been revived that the actual manager of Dempsey, as he prepares for his bout with Gene Tunney, is none other than his better half, that talented movie actress, Estelle Taylor.

Leo Perilous Flynn (insert) is Dempsey's manager in name only, according to the rumors. It is Estelle, the story goes, who is actually directing the ex-champion in his battle to regain his crown and a few hundred thousand dollars.

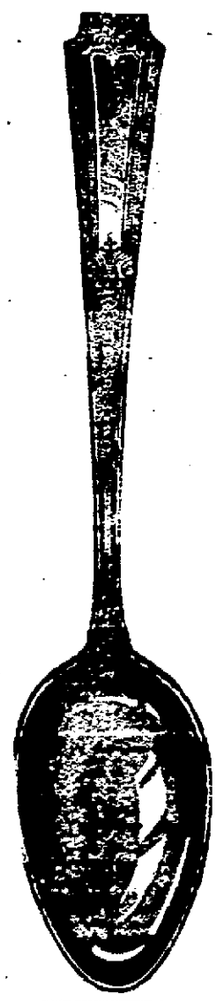

Flynn laughs at the yarn. Estelle is mum on the subject. Ask Jack? Yes, he knows, but he isn't saying anything about it. He's a model husband!

This Hustling Age

Of course we are all the creatures of our age. The luxuries of yesterday become the needs of today. If we were suddenly transported into the days of our grandparents, we would find the manner of life unbearable. They traveled by stage or on foot, and arrived on time. Today the fastest express trains scarcely meet our needs, and we are continually seeking for faster means of transportation and communication.

Your Big Left Foot

Your left foot is larger than your right, in 99 cases out of 100. Science explains it in many ways; but we accept the easiest one, which is that we are a world of left-footed loungers. We lean against posts and door jambs and we do most of our leaning on our left foot; consequently, through the years it has grown to support the weight that the lazy foot doesn't. The next time you buy shoes, have your left foot measured first.

St. Rita

St. Rita was canonized in 1900. She is called the saint of the impossible, and is generally pictured holding a bunch of roses. When she was dying, it was in the winter, and cold, and she asked one of the nuns at her bedside to go to the garden to pick her a rose. Those about her bed thought that her mind was wandering, but one of them, as a matter of form, went to the garden, and, behold, on one of the bushes was a beautiful rose.

Hellenist

Hellenes was one of the names of the inhabitants of ancient Greece, and the word Hellenist meant one who affected Greek manners, especially a person of Jewish extraction who used the Greek language as his mother tongue, as did the Jews of Asia Minor, Greece, Syria and elsewhere. Many of the Jews scattered through the provinces of Asia Minor during the first century of the Christian era were Hellenists.
